THREE MILLIONS ARE HOMELESS

Japanese Refugees Swarm to the Open Country.

TOTAL CASUALTIES 500,000

Only a Few Buildings Remain in Yokohama, the Greatest Japanese Port—Thousands of Dead Piled Along the Countryside—Outbreak of Pestilence Feared—Hundred Foreigners Among Victims.

Shanghai, China, Sept. 5.—The Japanese ministry of marine estimates the number of dead in Tokio at 150,000, at Yokohama 100,000, Nagoya 50,000 and Yokosuka 50,000. Total casualties, it was feared, would be 500,000.

Communication with the cities and villages to the north and east of Tokio has been cut off, but it is believed that more than 100,000 perished from the quake, fire and tidal wave in that section.

The damage in Tokio alone was placed at $2,500,000,000.

The emperor, empress and prince regent are safe at Osaka, which has, temporarily, been made the capital.

Prince Shmizdu was crushed to death at Oiso when a building collapsed. Prince Hirotsada was killed in the collapse of the Sasako tunnel. More than 600 others were killed when the full force of the quake brought the mountain down on the moving train.

Yokohama is still smoldering. The latest report from the greatest Japanese port is that only a few buildings remain.

Three million people are homeless and most of them are swarming in gigantic crowds to the open country beyond Fujiyama.

Embassies Wrecked. Details that trickled into Osaka from the disaster area report that the buildings of the Chinese, American, French and other embassies in Tokio were among the structures entirely wrecked by the fire, quake and tidal storm.

Two million homeless Japanese spread over the outskirts of Tokio are reported to be in great suffering, with women and children, as usual, bearing the brunt of the misfortune. Thousands of dead are piled along the countryside rotting and decaying. Starvation and disease overshadow everything else, and desperate attempts are being made by the horror-stricken living to prevent the great disaster from being increased in its fatal consequences by the addition of pestilence and plague.

In spite of the ruthless burning of the dead an outbreak of pestilence is seriously threatening because lack of drinking water is forcing hundreds of thousands to quench their thirst with polluted river water.

Thousands are reported to have been badly wounded while trying to approach relief storehouses without regard to the warning threatened by barred bayonets. Hundreds of refugees were killed.

American Envoy Escaped.

American Ambassador Cyrus E. Wood and his family escaped death when their embassy crumbled to the ground as the terrible earthquake of Saturday vibrated death and destruction throughout Tokio, Yokohama and thousands of surrounding villages. Among the cities destroyed were Tokio, Yokohama, Nagoya, Odawara, Maehioji, Chiba, Kawaguchi, Kofu, Gotemba, Koyama, Mishima, Atama, Mo, Yokosuka and Shimoda.

Late reports from Yokohama and Tokio state that at least 100 foreigners were killed in these cities. Japanese newspaper men who have arrived at Osaka confirm this detail and bring terrifying descriptions of what they saw in the doomed area. These newspaper men say that the British consul at Yokohama was killed.

When the Fujiyama spinning mills, housed in great modern buildings, collapsed in the quake not more than a dozen of the 8,000 employees escaped death.

A Japanese consular officer here said that the disaster will throw Japan back a generation, and the destruction of its naval bases and many of its naval craft will bring its position as a naval power far below many European nations that before the quake were able to muster far less naval strength than Japan.

An illustration of the terrific force of the earth convulsions that brought in its wake the terror of fire and tidal wave is the report from Tokio that the mountains Kamoyama, Nogeyama and Iseiyama, on the Izu peninsula, were practically leveled in the upheaval. Later dispatches confirmed the disappearance of Ochima, which is 25 miles due south of Tokio and said that not a single soul had survived to tell of the swallowing up of the island with its 6,200 inhabitants.

At Tokio the river Sumida, which flows through the city, was changed in its course by the quake and its waters were covered with bodies for several miles.

Paid $27,000,000 to Veterans.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—Ohio has paid adjusted compensation totaling $27,718,788.84 to 206,084 Ohio veterans of the world war, according to a report made by Bonus Director Roberts. Payments during August amounted to $81,074.60. Average claim since payments were commenced has been $134.47. Administrative expenses since the department began operations have been $183,164.93.

Highway Contracts Awarded. Columbus, Sept. 5.—Director of Highways Boulay announced the granting of contracts amounting to $600,267.83 for the construction of highways in Belmont, Franklin, Jefferson, Lawrence, Mahoning, Portage and Trumbull counties. Materials stipulated in the contracts were either bituminous, macadam or brick.

ITALY VIOLATED LEAGUE PACT

Delegates Assembled at Geneva Express Opinions.

DISCUSS MUSSOLINI'S OFFER

Italian Premier Would Refer to The Hague Court the Question of the League's Competence to Adjudicate the Greco-Italian Dispute—Proposal Not Taken Seriously at Geneva.

Geneva, Sept. 5.—Premier Mussolini's proposal to refer to the court of international justice at The Hague the question of the league of nations' competence to adjudicate the Greco-Italian dispute is not taken seriously here. There is nothing for the court to decide.

The covenant of the league of nations lays down explicitly the procedure to be followed. Both Italy and Greece voluntarily bound themselves by the treaty to the league. Greece has observed it; Italy has violated it and taken the law into her own hands, say delegates here.

If, however, Mussolini is anxious that The Hague court should formally declare that he has broken the covenant, the matter can be arranged without delay. The court is in session and can be called on by the council as a matter of urgency to deal with the matter immediately.

M. Politis, the Greek delegate, proposed to the council the appointment of representatives to supervise the inquiry which Greece is already conducting into the murder of General Tellini and his associates. He has also asked the council to appoint a commission of three high magistrates—one Italian, one Greek and one neutral—to sit at Geneva and decide the amount of indemnity Greece must pay and offers to deposit immediately in a Swiss bank the full amount of 50,000,000 lire demanded by Mussolini as a guarantee of the willingness of Greece to pay any sum the commission decides.

The session of the league assembly was marked by three disquieting incidents: First, the commission for legal and judicial matters of the league assembly elected former President Motta of Switzerland, the Swiss delegate, chairman of the subcommittee, over the distinguished Italian jurist, former Foreign Minister Scialoja; second, when the assembly elected its vice presidents the Italian delegation did not vote, and, third, six vice presidents were elected, but none of them were Italians. It is understood that none of them wished to serve. These straws in the wind may indicate trouble.

"ITALY'S HONOR AT STAKE"

Mussolini Resents Interference on the Part of League of Nations.

Rome, Sept. 5.—Premier Mussolini of Italy made the following statement:

"If the league of nations persists in its intention to interfere in Italy's personal affair of honor with Greece, Italy may be forced to leave the league. I respect the aims of the league, but deny that there is anything in the pact providing for her intervention in such cases as the present, which touches the honor of Italy. The pact only speaks of 'danger of war.' There is no danger of war now. It is a question merely of the simple execution of justice. When French sailors were slain in Athens in 1916, France imposed similar severe conditions on Greece such as Italy imposes now. I shall hold Corfu until Greece obeys without qualification all of our demands. If Greece commits further outrages on Italian subjects I shall commence repressive military measures immediately."

Liquor Permits to Be Revoked.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—During the month of August, Federal Prohibition Director J. E. Russell announced, more than 40 druggists and physicians were cited for revocation of their permits for violations of the federal prohibition laws. A few weeks ago Russell issued a warning to physicians and druggists against violations of the liquor laws, declaring at that time that a number of doctors and druggists had become bootleggers.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Knight Attacks Taft Act.

Wobster, O., Sept. 5.—Former Congressman Charles L. Knight of Akron, speaking at a Kiwanis club luncheon here, declared "Ohio has the worst taxation laws in the United States and we are doing our best to perpetuate them." He condemned the Taft taxation act, which, he said, if allowed to stand, means that henceforth and indefinitely, the burden of taxation in Ohio must be borne by real estate, while the intangible wealth of the state goes untaxed. The act, he declared, should be nullified by the people.

Former Matron Seriously Ill.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—John McNamara, assistant welfare director, left for Deer Park, Md., to bring back Mrs. McNamara, former matron of the Girls' Industrial home, who has been there for the past two weeks. Mrs. McNamara went to the resort with a hope of her failing health being improved, but a message from there was to the effect that her physical condition was no better and that the attending physician had recommended her immediate return to her home.

Straw Referendum Proposed.

Cleveland, Sept. 5.—Efforts to secure votes for a straw referendum on modification of the Volstead act to permit the use of light wine and beer are under way in Cleveland. Representatives of the National Liberal Alliance, Washington, are preparing to place ballot boxes in theaters, stores and on street corners.

Two Men Found Dead.

Mansfield, O., Sept. 5.—Two farmers, Cashel Adams, 77, and Christian Kinsey, 71, were found dead on their farms. Heart trouble is given as the cause in each instance. Mr. Adams started to a field where his nephew, Delos Adams, was plowing. He was found lying in the field dead. Mr. Kinsey died on top of a straw stack.

Diver Dies.

Cincinnati, Sept. 5.—His eagerness to show a woman companion how well he could dive caused the death of Albert Ferntheil, 26, of Mount Washington, a suburb. He was rowing with her two miles north of Coney Island in the Ohio river at the time. He is believed to have struck a submerged snag.

Murder Victims Buried.

Ottawa, O., Sept. 5.—Five thousand persons attended the funeral of Miss Olivia Tenwalde, her mother, Mrs. William Tenwalde, and her cousin, Lawrence Tenwalde, for whose murder Charles Shank, 40, farm laborer, is being sought. The three were shot to death Saturday night.

Street Fatalities.

Cleveland, Sept. 5.—Ida Wolf, 60, was killed when struck by an automobile. Charles Abell, 62, Lakewood, suffered a fractured skull when struck by a streetcar.

Struck by Trolley Car.

Marietta, O., Sept. 5.—J. D. Thompson, 59, district superintendent of the Southern Oil company, was killed and three others hurt when his car was struck by an interurban car.

Bandits Hold Up Bank.

Greenville, O., Sept. 5.—Two bandits held up the Farmers' National bank here and escaped in an automobile with $5,000 after eluding a posse. When the men entered the bank they compelled President Joseph Menke and the clerks to lay on the floor and rifled several money drawers.

RED CROSS RELIEF PLANS APPROVED

Coolidge Urges American People to Assist Japan.

NATIONWIDE DRIVE UNDER WAY

Government Putting All Its Available Resources at Work to Provide Relief for the Stricken People—Many Vessels With Supplies Ordered to the Scene of the Great Disaster. Activity at Capital.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The government is putting all resources it properly can at work to provide relief for stricken Japan, it was announced at the White House.

The formulation of relief plans was the chief business before President Coolidge. The executive is in close touch with the state, war and navy departments, the shipping board, the Red Cross, the agencies through which the relief work will be carried on.

An outstanding development was the approval by the president of plans of the Red Cross immediately to launch a nationwide drive for a $5,000,000 relief fund. The plans were laid before the president by Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wadsworth, officers of the Red Cross and vice-chairman Fisher, of that organization.

Telegrams have gone to every Red Cross chapter, to start the fund raising campaign. There will be state, city and town quotas allotted after the manner of the war drives.

Secretary of War Weeks went over with the president plans of the war department to send relief supplies to Japan. The transports Meigs and Merrick, with a combined carrying capacity of 16,000 tons, have been ordered to proceed from Manila with all possible speed carrying tents, cots, medical supplies, food, etc. General Reid is in charge of this expedition.

The navy department already is rushing relief from Chefoo, China, under command of Rear Admiral Anderson. Likewise the shipping board has ordered vessels within one day of Tokio to proceed there and others in Asiatic waters to report to Admiral Anderson for instruction.

The Red Cross relief plans, before being submitted to President Coolidge, were laid before Ambassador Hanthara of Japan, who approved them and expressed the appreciation of his government for the tender of assistance to his people.

At the White House, a spokesman for President Coolidge characterized the Japanese catastrophe as without a parallel in world history, declaring that there had been a greater loss of life and destruction of property than mankind had ever before known. It was stated for the president that the people of the United States and the government want to give every possible assistance and relief to the stricken nation across the Pacific, and in so doing are performing a service that evidences the friendship of America for Japan.

AMERICANS INCLUDED

Hundred Foreigners Perish in the Japanese Disaster.

Kobe, Japan, Sept. 5.—At least 100 foreigners, many of them Americans, have perished in the great Japanese disaster, refugees arriving here from the quake zone said.

Several of the refugees said that the loss of life and destruction in the countryside was almost as heavy as in Tokio and Yokohama, and that the total deaths probably would be 500,000.

A Japanese newspaper man, who walked more than 50 miles to get to a telegraph station, said the destruction in cities and villages was complete and confirmed the estimates of half a million fatalities.

Effects of the earthquake are summarized as follows: Five hundred thousand dead, 3,000,000 homeless, 350,000 houses destroyed in Tokio, $3,000,000,000 damage.

COOLIDGE CONFERS WITH DRY CHIEF

More Rigid Enforcement of Prohibition Laws Planned.

Washington, Sept. 5.—President Coolidge moved to "learn conditions as they exist and what can be done for a proper enforcement of the prohibition law."

For almost two hours the president conferred at the white house with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, who returned to his desk after an absence of five weeks on account of illness. It was the president's first official move looking toward a more rigid and effective enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

At the conclusion of the conference Haynes said the president expressed himself as well pleased with the reports he made to him of what had been done in the past and of what was being done now.

The conference centered around plans for bringing about a closer coordination between state and federal enforcement agencies. Haynes said. The president is not decided as yet just how this should be brought about. He is considering two suggestions, calling a conference of governors in Washington or issuing a proclamation appealing to the states to co-operate more fully with the federal authorities.

'PARKA MAN' HAD ONE REGRET

Highwayman Did Not Recognize His Own Pastor—Bishop Was Not Robbed.

Bishop Rowe recently went on record with the following "favorite story": "A fellow known as the 'blue parka man' had been stationing himself between Fairbanks and the mine some twenty miles away, and robbing people at the muzzle of a Winchester. A parka is a sort of shirt that fits tight at the wrists, with a hood attachment. The front part of the hood closes with a puckering string, leaving only a place for the wearer to look out of. The 'blue parka man' did well at his enterprise for some months and terrorized those who had to travel between Fairbanks and the mines. I was one of a quartette that had to make a trip one afternoon. People told us about the 'blue parka man,' but it was necessary to take the chance. The 'blue parka man' did get us, making us lay all our money on the ground at the muzzle of his rifle. 'Do you rob ministers, too?' I asked him. 'Depends on who they are,' replied the 'blue parka man.' 'I'm Bishop Rowe of the Episcopal church.' 'Wh-a-t!' the 'blue parka man' exclaimed. 'I'm ashamed of myself for not recognizing you, bishop, and I'll not rob you. Hell! I'm a member of your church!'"

Sentimental Telegram.

Literary art is seldom employed in the composition of telegrams. But a writer in the London Express knows of a man who does aim at elegance in his telegraphic style, though with another purpose than the gratification of his own taste. When the man is in the country, says the Express, he writes beautiful telegrams to his aunts in town on the least provocation. Here is a typical one: "What pleasing prospect nature offers in evening eye delighted with distant groves fields meadows cows sheep soul soothed awed contemplation of infinite will you send on another twenty pounds temporarily short Henry." And he usually gets it, too!

Boob the Bookman.

Ima Boob got a job as porter in a book store and, during the absence of the proprietor and clerks, undertook to wait on a customer. "This here is a funny place," he said afterward, "and maybe there ain't some dumbbells floatin' in and out of this store. A man that looked as if he had some sense came in this morning and I walks right up to him as pleasant as I could. 'Let me see 'The Spenders,' he said, and I had a notion to say somethin' sarcastic-like, but I didn't. I says nicely, 'Gents' furnishing goods next door,' and he busted right out laffin' in my face. The idea of looking for 'spenders in a book shop.'"

Opportunity Passed.

Dorothy was heard impatiently calling for her sister, Jane, but received no answer. When Jane finally did answer her, Dorothy was crying heart-brokenly. When asked what the trouble was she replied, "Well, I called Jane so long I forgot what I wanted to call her for."

No Cause to Worry.

A society "to prevent the Bible from being scoffed at in colleges" has been started. The Bible has been scoffed at for about 2,000 years, both in and out of colleges, and still remains the international "best seller." Why worry?—Minneapolis Journal.

Origin of Prayers.

In Genesis occurs the sentence: "Then men began to call upon the name of the Lord." That was supposed to be about 3875 B. C. Pope Gregory, in 532, instituted the manner of praying with the face to the east.

Life's Constant Changes.

In human life there is a constant change of fortune; and it is unreasonable to expect an exemption from the common fate. Life itself decays, and all things are daily changing.—Plutarch.

Although the brain is perpetually active, yet the whole of it is never at work at one time. The two hemispheres, or halves, do not operate simultaneously, but alternate in action.

Faces in Profile.

According to history the first profile taken was that of Antigonous, who was thus portrayed because he had only one eye. Most of the Roman emperors were also thus pictured.

Revolutions.

Revolutionists are not made, they come. A revolution is as natural a growth as an oak. It comes out of the past. Its foundations are laid far back.—Wendell Phillips.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

LEGION SEEKS MISSING MAN

Mother Appeals to Organization to Help Locate Her Son, Boyd Martin McClure.

Diligent search is being made for Boyd Martin McClure, a World War veteran, who formerly served in the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth, One Hundred and Thirtieth and Four Hundred and Seventieth aero squadrons, until December, 1918. To the efforts of the various civil organizations, government agencies have added their services in the quest for the missing man.

McClure, whose mother resides in McKenzie, Tenn., enlisted in the army in Great Falls, Mont., in August, 1917. Prior to that time he had been employed by the Great Northern railway as a fireman. He reached England while in the service, but was returned and discharged, leaving for the West. According to reports made by investigators, he worked for the Great Northern after his return. He is said to have lost his personal effects in a fire which destroyed a railroad hotel in Fargo, N. D., among which was his army discharge, which had previously been sent to him by his mother.

In May, 1922, he made application to the executive secretary of the Red Cross in Billings, Mont., for a certificate of discharge in lieu of the lost original. Further trace of the man was found at the Salvation Army headquarters in that city, where McClure was a guest about this time, but the man disappeared in June, 1922. No trace has been found since that time, though it is believed that he may be at work in the Dakotas or Montana.

McClure's mother is said to be in need of help at her home in Tennessee and seeks the assistance of the American Legion in locating her son, though she fears he is dead or a patient in some hospital, because of an illness which followed an attack of influenza while in service.

At the time of enlistment the man was twenty-two years of age. He was six feet in height, weighed about 146 pounds, had brown eyes, brown hair, fair complexion, upper teeth slightly protruding. Any member of the Legion or other person in possession of information concerning this man should address Mrs. U. G. McClure, McKenzie, Tenn.

MANY CHAPLAINS TO ATTEND

Clergymen of All Denominations Expected at National Legion Convention in October.

World war chaplains will receive special attention at the national convention of the American Legion in San Francisco next October, Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, convention chairman, has announced. A committee, comprising prominent clergymen of San Francisco and California, all of whom served as army, navy or marine chaplains during the World war, will be charged with the reception of hundreds of visiting "padres" expected to attend the convention.

Maj. Joseph P. McQuaide, former chaplain of the Sixty-second Artillery regiment, and a participant in the campaigns in the Philippines, has been appointed chairman of the chaplains' committee. Major McQuaide already has communicated with Father William P. O'Connor of Cincinnati, Legion national chaplain, in regard to convention arrangements for the chaplains.

Jewish rabbis, Protestant ministers, Catholic priests and chaplains of all other denominations, are represented on the convention committee. Estimating from forecasts made by National Adjt. Lemuel Boiles and figures gathered by officials of the San Francisco convention and Tourist league, the civic organization that aids in obtaining conclaves for the city, the national convention committee plans to entertain 150,000 visiting American war veterans during convention week.

To Have Official Band.

Kansas is to have an official band at the San Francisco convention of the American Legion this year. The band will be chosen at a state-wide competition to be held in conjunction with the state convention at Hays early this fall. Plans for a drum corps competition also are to be considered.

Scouts to Use Legion Camp.

Boy scouts of Toledo, O., will camp at the island home of Toledo post of the American Legion this summer, according to plans just announced. The Legion post maintains a camp on the island, named in honor of former National Commander Frederick W. Galbraith, Jr., of the Legion.

Signs Compensation Bill.

Governor Pritchett of Pennsylvania has signed a bill passed by the state legislature which provides for payment of compensation for World War veterans in the event that a $35,000,000 bond issue for that purpose is approved by the voters at the next general election.

One Blemish on Red Squirrel.

The red squirrel is a great favorite in the country districts, where its pranks and habits are well known, says Nature Magazine. In some places it is called the pine squirrel or chickaree. It has one bad habit. It is very fond of eating the eggs of several of our song birds. Otherwise it feeds upon pine seeds and those of some plants, as well as buds and insects. It ranges over a large part of eastern North America.

Needed Attachment.

"I took the telephone operator out fishing with us," said Bowers. "She had just got her line in when a big bass pulled it, line and all, into the water." "What did she do?" inquired Loveland, with considerable interest. "She munched her gum for a few minutes, then said placidly: 'The line is busy!'"—Kansas City Star.

Serving His Age.

Whatever a man's sentiments are upon mature deliberation, it will still be necessary for him in a conspicuous work to preserve his undauntedness from censure, and to accommodate his designs to the gust of the age. He lives in, though it appears to him less rational.—Sir Christopher Wren.

Cats in Churches.

Most of the churches in Naples have three or four cats attached to them. They are kept for the purpose of catching the mice which infest all ancient Neapolitan buildings. The animals may often be seen walking about among the congregation or stretched before the altar.

To Remove Beans From Nose.

If children put beans or other small objects up the nose in such a way as to make the removal difficult run cayenne pepper upon the upper lip to induce sneezing. In this way the snub impediment is usually expelled with no need for summoning the physician.

Pie Still "Landed."

The ancient ceremony of "Landing the Pie," founded in the reign of Henry VIII, was revived at Eel Pie Island, Richmond, Eng. The pie was rowed across the island and then borne ashore by the crew in full regalia.

Friendly Philosophy.

HOOSIER

—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

—the Only Kitchen Convenience that Adjusts Your Work-Table to Suit Your Height

Gymnasium instructors have a little trick of asking new members of their classes to hold their hands above their heads and open and close their fingers. After a minute or two the student usually suffers an acute pain in the muscles. Yet opening and closing the fingers is a simple, natural operator. It's the unnatural position in which the arms are held which wears one out.

Unless your work-table is adjusted to the proper height to suit your individual build, you stand in an unnatural position which puts a muscle strain on arms and back for such movements as rolling dough and beating eggs.

That is why so many women wear themselves out at their kitchen work. It is also why women who own the new HOOSIER are freed from such muscle-strains. For the new HOOSIER gives you a work-table adjusted to your comfort.

An initial payment as low as $1.00 will put a HOOSIER in your home.

New Straightline Coats for Travel

Wrap-Around Garment and Egyptian Embroidery Bid for Favor

The new straightline wrap-around coats with Egyptian embroidery running horizontally are the latest thing in travel coats, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. One designer makes a cape of dark blue serge that extends to the waist in front and to the knees in back, flaring in a circle. A scarf of red and black folds around the neck and hangs down to the hips on the side front, being held in place by the belt of the dark blue dress beneath.

There are as many ways of varying the cape suit for travel as there are couturiers in Paris, but the general rule is that it must be made of some practical wool material, with the cape not more than hip length in front. The scarf, in combination with the cape, is seen on many of these models.

Suits for travel have short coats and plain, rather short skirts. They are very trim and very untrimmed, except for unusual stitching, braid and buttons. The pocket is usually a feature of these suits, and if it is inconspicuous it is advertised by the use of a decorative little handkerchief.

Travel Coat in Which Green and Gray Drapella Are Combined, Using Green for Pointed Sections on Cape Collar, Sleeves and Hip Band.

Leather for travel suits is sometimes used. Another designer makes suits of suede that are very smart and useful.

There are long wraps for the journey which are loose affairs with fur collars. These are very bold in effect, having wide ten-inch stripes of contrasting colors, or are in plaids of many colors. The fur collar is often times dyed to match the color of the stripes. Such coats are usually worn over dresses.

For wear with suits there are waist-length capes similar to the coats just described. Coats and capes of this sort are extremely practical for traveling, as they do not crease easily.

Many Kinds of Gloves to Please All Tastes

Fancy gauntlet gloves, very short, with flared cuffs elaborately embroidered, or in double or triple tier effect, sum up the fashions in gloves.

The white lace kid glove embroidered in color or in black, with fancy gauntlet cuffs, is the newest note, and is worn irrespectively with long or short-sleeved gowns.

Mastic suede gloves in two-tone effects, namely, stitched in a darker tone in tan or brown silk also are fashionable. Two-tone and two-color combinations are very good; also black with a color, or white with a color.

Multi-colored embroideries are used in novelty gloves sold by the high-class specialty shops. There is less demand for black lace kid, although novelty gauntlets in place kid embroidered in colored silk and in metal are still represented. No gloves are worn with evening dresses.

Let in the Sun.

In the old days, blinds and curtains were kept down in the home to exclude the sun for fear its rays would fade some precious carpet or rug. Now sun and air are welcomed gladly and people live longer and better because they know better.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

All Are Costumes.

In these days, nothing is a separate garment, each piece of clothing makes up a costume. Two and three-piece suits continue to be the rage.

High Collars.

A very high collar of organdie has made its appearance. It is bordered with midnight blue and scarlet organdie.

Jacquette Is Knitted in Odd Loose Stitch

In tangerine and nickel gray, with solid gray collar, cuffs and bottom, this knitted jacquette will appeal to many young women.

More Elastic Being Used in Wearables

More and more of women's clothes are being "made on elastics," and this simple arrangement is a decided improvement over old-fashioned, complicated fastenings. One never hears of any woman wanting to go back to using a multitude of pins, still there is the question, "How do you manage the elastics in your camisoles and bloomers? Do they always go to pieces in the first washing?"

A little care and thought expended in the purchase of this very necessary little article in the first place would eliminate half of the future trouble. The characteristics of a good elastic, for which you are to look when shopping, are a fine strong yarn used in its construction, and which insures you a neat, compact fabric; and a rubber which is sturdy elastic when stretched.

The difference in the way elastics are made divides them into two types, the woven and the braided.

Wide elastics, and that used for arm bands, garters and hose supporters, are usually woven. To make this woven elastic, the warp threads of yarn, and of rubber are set up on the loom together, the rubber being stretched to equal the length of the warp threads. The yarns used in making elastic webbing may be cotton, mercerized cotton, artificial silk and silk. Good yarn has a lot to do with the wearing quality of your elastic. The "filling" or weft threads are put in in such a way that they are held in place by being woven through the warp threads, and so as to cover completely and protect the rubber.

In buying braided elastic, you can get either the flat or the tubular. The rubber threads run lengthwise in the flat elastic, and have the cotton covering running diagonally over and under the elastic threads.

In the round elastic the braid is tubular, with a strand of rubber running through the center; you can also buy a combination of the flat and the round called "oval elastic."

When it comes to comparing the woven and braided elastic there is one difference that should be pointed out. Woven elastic can only stretch as far as the length of the warp threads, while braided elastic stretches much farther. So you can readily see that the strain and wear on braided elastic would naturally be much greater. If you are buying the wider widths, then, you would expect more satisfactory service from the woven elastic. But when a smaller elastic is wanted, the braided type is especially good, as it gives a neater, more finished appearance.

Experience has proved that heat, light and grease cause rubber to deteriorate very rapidly, and a note made of that fact may be a very material factor in prolonging the life of your elastic.

Utility Coat Likely to Be Fall Favorite

Pile fabric coats featuring, for the most part, straight lines with fur collars and cuffs, form a large group in the fall models. Another group consists of models developed in another type of utility coatings suggestive of, in the misses' sizes, a school type of garment, and in the women's, a practical coat for all-weather.

Camel's hair cloth, plaid fabrics and in a special group plaid-back cloth form the array of mediums used for these coats, which for the most part are marked by convertible collars of generous size, with large patch pockets, such as are indispensable in the topcoat. Others are developed on straight, semi-wrap lines.

Fur collars finish many of these models, foxes appearing often in the assortments.

Poke-Bonnet Type.

A veritable Victorian bonnet of pale green silk is one of the sort of hats young girls are wearing today. It is of the poke-bonnet type, but much smaller and fits very closely to the head. Usually the trimming is of flowers and fruit combined.

Evening Capes in Gay Colors.

Changeable taffeta is an ideal material for evening capes.

A Fake Alarm.

A curious thing once occurred in a small village near Sheffield, England. One of the villagers, says a contributor to Country Life, thought he saw smoke pouring from the spire of the parish church and at once raised an alarm. The village fire brigade turned out, and in a few minutes the brigade from a neighboring town came rushing to the scene. By that time many other people agreed with the villager that they, too, saw smoke; but oddly enough no one could find any trace of fire. As a precaution, however, the firemen drenched the spire with water. Then they went home. The next morning everything was quiet, but at evening the strange clouds again began to ascend from the spire, and there was talk of summoning the fire brigades for the second time. Then the vicar had a happy thought; he went home and got his field glass. Through them he saw, not smoke, but bees! A large swarm had settled at the top of the spire, and from a distance they looked exactly like clouds of smoke eddying in the currents of the upper air.

A Queer Crossing.

Crossing a river with a pack train in Mongolia is a thing to remember. Mr. A. S. Kent in his book, "Old Tartar Trails," describes how he once crossed the Kobdo river: There were two dugouts into which we loaded our baggage, and when all was ready we first chased the ponies into the water. Then, tying a couple of ropes to the heads of the camels, we handed the ends to a native in the stern of one of the boats. Two ponies supplied the power; a Mongol, leaning over the bow of each boat, grasped a pony's tail in his right hand while he manipulated the reins with his left. In that manner we crossed the river. When we got into shallow water near the opposite bank and the camels that we were towing astern were able to touch ground with their feet they floundered under the dugout and all but succeeded in upsetting us. It was several hours before we caught the ponies, which had broken loose, and were ready to start again.

All in the Point of View.

On the occasion of her fiftieth birthday, the many friends and admirers of Princess Pauline Metternich, one of the celebrities of the court of Napoleon III, foregathered at Vienna to pay their respects to her. While all were complimenting her on her unimpaired health and youthfulness, one somewhat tactless well-wisher remarked enthusiastically: "After all, what do fifty years amount to?" To which the princess wittily replied: "Nothing for a cathedral, but a good deal—for a woman!"

Predecessors of the Pianoforte.

The pianoforte as it is today in its essential parts, i. e., in the organism which produces the sound, is very little different from (we may almost say perfectly similar to) the first instrument with hammers, invented by Bartolomeo Cristofori of Padua at the beginning of the Eighteenth century, writes Guido M. Gatti, in Musical News and Herald. The last two hundred years which saw such brilliant developments of mechanics have not produced anything more perfect and more efficient than that simple and genial combination of levers which did away entirely with the old system of Saltarelli (harpichord jacks), and thenceforth reigned supreme.

Let the Children Paint.

Children like to paint. Many mothers dislike to have their children use water colors because they soil their dresses and handkerchiefs, as well as hands. If the child is fond of painting he should be permitted to do it. Mother can provide him with a newspaper and let him experiment until he cuts a pattern for an apron, then give him a piece of cambric, muslin, gingham, percale or satin and let him cut and make a painting apron. This he may do at painting time, and thus protect other clothing.

THRIFT and EDUCATION

We think that "Thrift" should be as much the part of the American child's education as arithmetic, geography and spelling.

Doesn't it sound rather inconsistent to teach all the fine points about MAKING MONEY without saying a word about how to TAKE CARE OF IT after it is made.

A good way to teach thrift, is for each and every parent to see that his child has a Savings Account in this solid institution.

Such a step will have a beneficial influence on the child's future character.

AGREEMENT SEEN

Miners and Operators Resume Conferences With Pinchot.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 5.—Growing optimism that the resumption of conferences between deadlocked miners and operators here today will result in some agreement whereby the anthracite coal strike will be brought to a sudden close is apparent in circles close to Governor Pinchot.

The settlement of the wage dispute is expected to be made with the original peace proposal of Governor Pinchot as a basis. No new proposal will be made. There seems to be an impression that the miners will accept the 10 per cent wage increase and the check-off plan suggested by Governor Pinchot.

Governor Pinchot refuses to discuss the situation, but he will make every effort to bring the deliberations to a successful close in sessions here this week.

SOUTH SEA GIRLS CAUSE SAILORS TO DESERT SHIP

Seductive Charms of Native Maidens Prove Irresistible.

Honolulu.—The charms of two young and beautiful native maidens at Futu, Island of Niuaufu, in the South seas, proved stronger than the call back to civilization for two members of the crew of the schooner Alert, according to the story related by Capt. Daniel McDonald, master of the Alert, who arrived here aboard the Niagara with six members of his crew. They are on their way to the United States.

A sudden squall threw the Alert upon a coral reef off Futu on June 10, Captain McDonald said. The captain and the crew waited at the place a month for a passing ship to pick them up. Meanwhile Harry Terry and A. Olson, members of the crew, fell in love with two native girls and when a rescue ship finally arrived they refused to accompany their shipmates back to civilization.

The mariners married the girls, Captain McDonald said, and added:

"I can't blame Terry and Olson for their brides are very beautiful and exceptionally good housewives."

The skipper said no suffering followed the shipwreck. The natives, he said, are very hospitable and the women, especially the younger ones, are "very beautiful."

This Man Doesn't Worry About Clothing Prices

A. T. Vanderventer of New Metamoras, O., doesn't worry about the soaring prices of clothing. He doesn't even think of the style they'll wear in the fall or any other season. He has set a precedent all his own, none with possibly one exception, seems to want to follow. His precedent is a suit, coat, vest and trousers, made not of one piece of cloth or one color, but of 2,573 pieces of many colors of pure wool. He has called it his rainbow suit, and believes it is the only one of its kind since Joseph's of Biblical fame. The suit was made by Mr. Vanderventer's wife, and it required nine weeks of sewing the little pieces, cut in every conceivable shape, together. Mr. Vanderventer is seen garbed in his very odd apparel.

Find 10-Ft. Skeleton of Snake 100 Years Old

Monroe, La.—The skeleton of a huge snake measuring ten feet long, well preserved, and believed to have been more than 100 years old when it died, was found recently by a party of engineers and surveyors in a cave near Junction City, on the Louisiana-Arkansas state line. The remains of the reptile showed that it had 107 ridges, indicating its age, according to students of natural history. An aged negro living near the cave told members of the party a monster rattlesnake terrorized the section 60 years ago. Slaves set fire to the woods and it was never seen again, he said.

Auto Tow Ropes Save Injured Boy From Tide

Port Angeles, Wash.—Twelve towing ropes and cables commandeered from automobiles at Agate beach, near here, tied together and let down over a sheer 75-foot cliff, saved Carlyle Graham, sixteen years old, from the fast-incoming tide after he had fallen below and broken his leg in two places.

Whole Meal in Pill Is Scientist's Dream

A good hearty meal, all in a pill that can be carried in a vest pocket, is the dream of scientists of today, according to Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon general of the public health service. Some day dish washing and the dinner table will be gone and forgotten. The farthest scientists have progressed, according to Mr. Cummings, is to remove all the water from foods and condense them some 70 per cent.

The Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"There's no use trying to get rid of old people," said the Hotel Stenographer with a happy laugh.

"Who wants to get rid of those old people?" asked the House Detective.

"O, everybody thinks they do," answered the girl. "There's Persephone Dooley. When she married Dooley she told him she wasn't marrying his whole family and he needn't expect her to go to live with his mother. Dooley was mighty disappointed, but his mother told him she didn't blame her."

"One day Dooley told Perse to ask his mother to Sunday dinner. Mother said she was no experiment station for amateur cooks and Perse took advantage of this to start a quarrel with her and they didn't speak until the day after Perse came home from the hospital with her baby."

"One night it got croup and Dooley ran around the house like a crazy man till Perse told him to go get his mother. Mrs. Dooley had the baby all right in a couple of minutes and then she and Perse cried on each other's shoulders and Mrs. Dooley gave Perse a course in baby culture and they got to be friends. When old man Dooley died Perse had a fight with all the Dooleys till she got Mrs. Dooley to come and live with her. Now, when one of Perse's three children asks her if they can do anything she tells them to ask grandma. Whatever grandmother says they do, or Perse spans them good and plenty."

"Perse and Dooley won the prize waltz at the Journeyman Barbers' masked ball last night, while Grandmother Dooley tucked in the kids. When I asked Perse how it came that she let Dooley wish his mother on her she was ready to fight me."

BACK ON THE JOB.

Yee Hang, the Chinese landryman, who placed a sign on his door that the shop is closed, said on his arrival this morning that he meant "closed for one day, Labor day," but he stayed longer. He did not think that his message would be taken so seriously and that it was just a joke. Anyhow he says he is back and ready for business.

Besides her husband she is survived by a daughter, a son, a brother and two sisters. She was a member of the Third avenue M. E. church, Columbus and of the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary. Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Wednesday at the residence. Burial was in Union cemetery.

The Binkley family formerly resided in Circleville but removed to Columbus some years since. Mr. Binkley was a brother of the late Scott Binkley.

Honey Mentioned in Bible.

There are references to honey in the Bible, in the sacred books of the Hindus and in the Koran. In the Far East new honey has for ages been esteemed as a laxative and old honey as an astringent. Honey was one of the materials which the Egyptians used in embalming, and others of the ancients used it as a food preservative. There was a considerable traffic in bird's eggs and eggs packed in honey were shipped long journeys.

PAUSE AND REFLECT

When Something is Offered for Nothing. Or Where an Extra Profit is Offered Above What is Economically Safe.

More than a hundred years have passed since Benjamin Franklin penned this warning. Yet, what a good motto it is today.

There are still with us those who would have us forget that value received and price paid must always balance. In the long run, however, people don't forget. We are building for the future. Conservation, careful judgment and careful statement were valued yesterday, are valued today and will be valued tomorrow.

The beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wardell on the Circleville and Williamsport pike was the scene of a very pleasant event Sunday, August 26, and will long be remembered by the guests present, it being the fifth annual reunion of the Kegg families. A large tent was placed on the lawn where a bountiful dinner was served, to about sixty-eight. After the dinner the election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows; Harry Durrett, president and Anna Mason, secretary.

The afternoon was spent in music and visiting. In the evening ice cream and cake was served and all left thinking the day had been well spent and hoping to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin White near Grove City the last Sunday in August, 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Neff, of Stoutsville, entertained Monday evening the Heidelberg orchestra of which Mr. Neff is a member. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. TRIAL TRIP SUCCESSFUL
Greatest of Dirigibles Launched on Her Maiden Voyage.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 5.—A voyage that will doubtless decide the future aerial program of the United States navy was made when the ZR-1, greatest of dirigibles, was launched on its maiden voyage. With gently purring motors and without the slightest mishap the ZR-1 took the air here and started northward at 35 miles an hour.

It was a stirring sight as the ZR-1 made ready to cast off. A ground crew of 300 marines and sailors clung to the towlines that held the big ship to the earth, and at a signal they released her and she arose gracefully, turned her nose into the north wind and sailed away. The ZR-1 rose gradually and within 20 minutes had disappeared into a cloud bank. The trial trip lasted two hours and a successful landing was made at 3:30.

EUROPEAN COURT POMP BUT LITTLE AFFECTED BY WAR

Dinner for British Royal Family Cost Ambassador Harvey More Than $8,000.

The pomp of European courts has not decreased noticeably since the war, according to reports of American diplomats to the State department.

American ambassadors are continuing their complaints of inadequate salaries to meet the heavy drain of social entertainment, and are citing post-war troubles of entertaining royalty at functions which equal or surpass the gilded affairs of prewar days in Europe.

For instance, the state dinner given recently by George Harvey, American ambassador to the Court of St. James, to the British royal family, cost the American envoy more than $8,000—for one dinner and "trimmings." In fact, the "trimmings" constituted a large part of the bill, which contained an item of $750 alone for palms and ferns given standing room in the fireplaces of the American embassy for the occasion.

Entertainment occasionally of the rulers of the nations to which they are accredited is an inescapable duty of American diplomats, who are provided with no entertainment fund to cover the costs of food and service. A few are wealthy enough to bear extraordinary expenditures for social entertainment, but the poorer ones say that the war has not toned down the "class" of the required social duties.

The higher standing abroad of the American dollar is said to help some in bearing the expense, but in many cases local traders add to their bills, in the cases of the "rich American" diplomats, more than sufficient to meet the difference in the rate of exchange.

WARN OF GALVANIZED IRON

Government Chemists Caution on Keeping Food in Such Vessels.

Warning was issued by the bureau of chemistry of the Department of Agriculture against allowing food or drink to stand even for a short time in a galvanized iron vessel; also against such a utensil in making preserves or jellies or as a container for cider or other fruit juices.

The department stated that if this warning is disregarded, some of the zinc with which the bucket or utensil is galvanized probably will be dissolved, and will not only give the food an unpleasant taste, but is very apt to cause sudden and intense illness.

Experiments carried on by federal chemists with quantities of lemonade, orangeade, milk, carbonated water, Washington city tap water and distilled water held over night in galvanized iron buckets proved that zinc contamination occurred in each case.

BARS ICE CREAM AFTER 9:30

British Regulation Cuts Off Luxury to Workers in Early Night.

England does not have to contend with prohibition but, according to the ideas of the Ice Cream and Temperance Refreshment Trades federation, the regulations against the sale of ice cream and soft drinks would make Mr. Volstead envious.

Under the present law the sale of this class of refreshment is prohibited after 9:30 p. m. The bone of contention is that the West End clubs and hotels are allowed to sell ice cream until midnight, while the working classes cannot buy it after 9:30. The regulation was enacted as a wartime measure.

The federation will urge the labor party to place the matter before the house of commons.

FIGURING EASY FOR HINDU

Young Man Performs Amazing Mental Gymnastics.

Correctly extracting the seventh root of a number containing thirty-five digits almost instantly is one of the feats of mental arithmetic demonstrated by Somesh Chandra Bose of Calcutta, India.

Bose, a slim, turbaned young Hindu, quickly multiplied figures running into millions by each other. The problems were put to him by an audience in New York.

Bose said that at the age of eight he could mentally work out multiplications involving fourteen digits. By concentration, he claims to have developed his ability until he is able to multiply sixty digits by sixty digits.

SAILS NILE ONLY

Queer Craft Is Found on No Other Waters in World.

Traveler Describes the Felucca as Egypt's Floating Crockery Shop—Crew of Two Men.

What a felucca of the Nile is, and what she carries, is thus described by an English traveler in Egypt, writing from Cairo:

Her huge canvas sail bellying from the curved yard, forging on her way like some freak swallow with one white wing, a felucca sweeps down the Nile with the combined speed of the wind and a swift current. Her crew consists of two men, who squat like monkeys high above her deck, one of them holding the vessel's halliard in his right hand while his left grasps the clumsy tiller.

But such a ship never sailed on any sea or on the waters of any river save the Nile. Her mast and sail supply her only visible connection with navigation. She looks like a floating crate, and such, indeed, she is.

Somewhere under the mountain of her cargo she has a hull of sorts. But she is piled, yards high, into a redoubt of pink and brown earthenware jars, and hundreds of similar pots, slung in nets, yards deep, on either side of her bulwarks, float her so high in the air that her keel can hardly touch the water.

The felucca is Egypt's floating crockery shop. She is on her way to Lower Egypt, bearing to Cairo and to scores of villages along the banks of the Nile the broad, cone-ended jars wherein water is carried, on the heads of fellah women, from river and well.

Her "home port" is Kena, nearly 400 miles up the Nile, which from its possession of a peculiar variety of clay has been for centuries the home in Egypt of the potter and his handicraft.

The broad-based, narrow-mouthed water-jar, or balas—whose name comes from the village near Kena where it is made—is shaped not to stand, but to balance, on a woman's head. It is familiar in all pictures of Egypt.

But the balas is not the only product of Kena's clay, though it is the chief item of native catering for natives. The custom of upper-class Egyptians and Europeans is secured by a species of clay vase, round-bodied and narrow-necked, which Egyptians called a kulleh and we, in felicitous ignorance, a "cooler."

It deserves its name, and the absorbent properties of its clay make it one of the best of natural filters. Stand one kulleh on top of another, put your water in the upper one, set the whole erection in a draught and drink from the water that has filtered through to the lower jar is the recipe for a thirst-quencher, perfectly pure and of a coolness which can be appreciated only by summer exiles in the East.

A Handy Man to Have Round.

Theodore N. Vall was a versatile man. He had been telegraph operator, baseball player, farmer and mail clerk. He could cook, too. Once when driving with Mrs. Vall, says his biographer, Mr. Albert Bigelow Paine, he stopped at a farmhouse and asked the farmer's wife to give them some dinner. She set out a pie and some cheese; they were all she had ready, she said, but he might look about.

Thereupon Mr. Vall went out into the barnyard, chased and caught a chicken, found some tomatoes and other vegetables in the garden and prepared the chicken in elaborate style with gravy and fixings; he attended to everything without assistance. It was a fine meal, and when they were ready to go he paid the farmer's wife liberally for it.

"Well," said the woman, "I should think your wife would always be afraid of losing you!"

"Why so?"

"Because you're such a good man round the house."—Youth's Companion.

Hopeful Comparisons.

"I'm glad Henrietta has learned to take such an intelligent interest in public affairs," remarked Mr. Meekton.

"Doesn't it take her mind off her home?"

"Once in a while. It has served to show her that the judgment of a whole lot of men is just as liable to be mistaken as mine is."

Incentive to Industry.

"Your boy Josh is very fond of the motion pictures."

"Yes," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "And I won't say they haven't been a helpful influence. There have been times this summer when I don't believe Josh would have worked at all if he hadn't needed the money to buy tickets to the show."

All Lived to Celebrate.

Six people married at the same time and in the same place celebrated their golden wedding at Petton, near Chester-Street, England, last month. All six were married at a triple wedding service on May 31, 1873, at the local parish church.

And Probably the Cat Escaped.

A dog chasing a cat was responsible for a $600,000 fire in a Glasgow garage. The animals upset a blow-lamp. Twelve cars and part of the garage were destroyed.

CALL FOR HELP

Send Contributions for Japanese Sufferers to Miss Anna Florence.

The following telegram from Governor Donahey was received by Miss Anna Florence, chairman of the Red Cross:

"Am forwarding proclamation, Japanese relief. Please tell newspapers. Subscriptions may be mailed to you as agent for the Red Cross."

The telegram tells the story. Whatever you can spare to help these people who are in sore distress owing to an earthquake last Friday followed by floods and fires and the killing of two hundred and fifty thousand people making homeless nearly two millions of people will be heartily appreciated. Radio information has merely given us bits of the terrible catastrophe. It is the greatest loss of life and property that the world has ever sustained. The havoc is indescribable and the entire world is trying to assist the stricken people to recover from the disaster that has befallen the people across the Pacific.

AMUSEMENTS

Pola Negri's first appearance in an American made Paramount picture, "Bella Donna" produced by George Fitzmaurice was greeted with marked enthusiasm at the Met theater last night.

In this absorbing picturization of Robert Hichen's famous novel, Miss Negri marries a young Englishman who has just returned from an expedition in the Egyptian desert. On their honeymoon they return to that country so that Nigel (Conrad Nagel) may continue his work. The east lays a hypnotic spell on Bella Donna and when she meets Mehamound Baroudi (Conway Tearle), intensely dramatic events ensue.

The love affair between the pair continues for a period, when Baroudi suggests that Bella Donna free herself by poisoning her husband. Nigel Armine is slowly wasting away as the result of slow poisoning but is saved by the intervention of a friend, Dr. Isacson (Claude King). Learning the truth, Nigel casts out his wife who, new free, joyfully makes her way to Baroudi's camp. He, however, is with another woman, and brutally orders her away. Bella Donna goes out alone into the desert, a tragic figure.

Miss Negri has set the world astir by her foreign made pictures, but this her first American made production overshadows them all. It is, all in all a superb photodrama. Conway Tearle, in the role of Mahmoud Baroudi, makes an unusually sinister villain, while Conrad Nagel is excellent as the meek, unsuspecting husband, Nigel Armine. Others in the cast are Lois Wilson, as Patricia, Nigel's fiancée; Marcey Harlan and Robert Schable. This is the nearest all star cast ever seen in any picture.

The big dancing and comedy number, "Anabelle's Birthday on Mobile Bay" with J. A. Coburn's minstrels at the Grand theater Thursday, September 6, is said to surpass any act of its kind in several years in costuming, scenic and terpsichorean novelty and ability, combining comedy, dancing, singing and characteristic dialogue and situations between the Ole Mammy (Hank White) the pickaninies and the male and female characters composing the sketch. The hit made by former dancing acts and numbers and the new songs, dances etc., incorporated in the new show promise to make this a strong favorite on the bill. Twenty-five years of fair dealing and good faith with the public have made Coburn's minstrels ever welcome visitors to Circleville. Seats now on sale.

RAW SILK BURNED

Loss in Yokohama Will Amount to More Than $100,000,000.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—The total loss of raw silk destroyed in the Yokohama fire will amount to more than $100,000,000, it is believed, according to advices received here from Osaka. The local office of the Ono Trading company, one of the largest silk exporters in Yokohama, has received a cablegram from their Osaka agent, saying that the main office and warehouse in Yokohama were destroyed by fire. One million dollars' worth of raw silk, which was stored in the warehouse awaiting shipment to America, was burned.

Weather Bureau Forecasts Help

Of Great Importance to Fruit-Spraying Service
of State College.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In addition to the harvest weather forecast service in New York state, the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture provides forecasts which are of great importance to the fruit-spraying service maintained by the New York State College of Agriculture. The purpose of this service is to advise fruit growers in all matters pertaining to the spraying of fruit for the control of insect and other pests.

County Agent Is Head.

The county agricultural agent is at the head of this service in each county. He bears the responsibility of notifying the growers in his county, by telephone, mail or other means, whenever a spray application is advisable. Most growers are prepared to spray immediately on receipt of his advice, and do so in accordance with his directions. New York fruit growers spend approximately $3,000,000 annually in spraying operations.

In general three to five spray applications are made each season. It is of the utmost importance that each be applied at exactly the right time, neither too early nor too late, to avoid loss of labor and material and to catch the pests under exactly right conditions. In the case of apple scab, for example, a widespread and injurious fungus pest, the scab remains practically dormant during fair weather, but becomes actively infectious during rainy spells. The ideal condition for control of this pest, therefore, is two or three days of fair weather to apply the spray, followed by a rainy period.

Forecasts Essential.

Weather forecasts are essential in connection with the control of this pest by spraying, and for practically all fruit pests. The county agent, in preparing his advices to growers, takes account of the probable weather condition for three or four days in advance and the condition of buds and fruit as reported by the field agent who travels about the county observing the development of the fruit buds and also of the various pests. Twelve counties have organized for this work, and all of them regard the weather bureau forecasts as indispensable.

Bible Thought for Today

Increase in Wheat Yield Made by Oregon Farmers

An increase in yield of more than 48,000 bushels of wheat without extra labor was the reward of farmers in Union county, Oregon, following the advice of the county extension agent last winter in selecting the variety of winter wheat to be planted. The county agent had carried on an effective campaign calling the attention of wheat growers in the county to the higher yielding qualities of the variety Hybrid 128 under local conditions, as shown by the state experiment station tests. As a result, a number of farmers planted Hybrid 128 and obtained an average increase of 6.1 bushels per acre over all other varieties, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. About 92 acres of the 1922 planting was certified for seed.

When you buy a KELLY CORD TIRE you get the long mileage for which Kellys have always been famous. You also get the greatest degree of protection against skidding that has ever been obtainable in any tire.

A good tire deserves a good tube. In fact, without a good tube inside it the best of tires won't yield the service its makers have built into it. Kelly tubes are a real economy. They are made to help tires deliver the mileage for which Kellys have always been noted.

Weapons to Be Employed Against Flies on Farm

If it is impossible to get rid of the breeding places of flies on the farm the best protection to the animals will be found in the use of repellants or mixtures which when applied to the animals will prevent the flies from attacking them, according to George Dean, Kansas state entomologist.

He suggests the possibility of destroying the breeding places of the horn fly, which is found in clusters on the shoulders, back and flanks of cattle in pasture, by scattering the animal droppings. Old rotting straw piles are the breeding places of the stable or biting fly, and Professor Dean suggests the advisability, if possible, of cleaning up or doing away with them.

Grit Is Most Essential to Health of Hen Flock

Grit is essential to the health of fowls and to economy in feeding. Grit takes the place of teeth in preparing the feed for further digestion and is required for the proper preparation of feed in the gizzard. When the feed is not properly taken care of in this organ an undue strain is thrown on the fowl's system, often resulting in disease, and also allowing much of the nutriment to pass through the bird's body without being absorbed. In every pen or yard a box of grit should be kept. Recent investigators have asserted that grit is part of the necessary feed, giving the fowls strong bones and a bright plumage.

Diseases of Raspberry Plants Hard to Detect

While most of the diseases which attack raspberry plants cannot be detected on the plants themselves, after they have been dug, care should be taken not to use plants which show hard knots or galls on the roots. These are likely to spread from plant to plant and the raspberry fields infected with this disease are seldom profitable.

PENNY AS TOKEN OR PLEDGE

Derivation of Coin Comes From Such Words as "Panel," "Pane," "Counterpane," Etc.

In its original form the penny was not a coin, but a token or pledge. Its derivation comes from the same source as that from which we get the word "paw," and also such words as "panel," "pane," "counterpane," and "panicle."

The readiest pledge to leave in pawn was cloth, hence the Latin "panna," a piece of cloth. The original panel was a piece of cloth, or patch, and from this we get the word "pane" as applied to a pane of glass, and also the word "penny," its literal meaning being a pledge or token, and hence a coin. Originally the word was spelt "peny."

The word shilling really means a division of money into small parts, and is obtained from a word meaning "to divide." Thus, in the first place, it was not a coin, but an indication of money having been made up in small form.

Sterling, as applied to money, is derived from the Hanseatic league, which had an important house in England. As their land lay "to the east of England," Englishmen called them "Easterlings," and the gold they paid in the course of trade became known as "Easterling money." Subsequently the expression became sterling.

The Horse's Speed Limit.

Before our agrarian population had taken so enthusiastically to the automobile, two farmers drove into town in an old spring wagon pulled by a very bony nag. The little burg had been incorporated, and among the evidences of this was a brand-new sign at the town line: "Speed limit—10 miles an hour." Observing this, the driver began whipping up his steed vigorously.

"What's yo' hurry?" demanded his companion in mild astonishment. "See that sign?" returned the other. "But I dunno if I can make it or not." —Everybody's Magazine.

LIGHT O' LAUGHTER

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"AND I wish," said Gordon Dare's mother, "that while you are on this trip you'd stop over at Glenmore and look up my old friend's daughter. Now, please do not demur, Gordon; this is an unusual request. A duty left undone by myself which has long troubled my conscience. May I tell you about it?"

The tall, dark-haired young man smiled his willingness. "But, mother," he objected, "you know how I detest these old calls of past memories. I am out for relaxation from wearisome daily conventions. Nevertheless, if that tender conscience of yours is bothering—"

"I may be able to make you understand my sense of responsibility in this matter," Mrs. Dare replied, "for I have neglected Rosalind's daughter all these years. But at the back of my memory has ever been a picture that would not be banished—the picture of a great, stately room in an old mansion on the Hudson river, and in a curtained bed my little friend, Rosalind, dying. Like some hurt child she lay, and turned her tired blue eyes to me.

"Hester," she begged, "you will see that they make my baby happy. She is such a tiny thing—no larger than my last doll. I would have my little daughter the very light of laughter—so I had planned, had I been spared. I have suffered in my husband's home; he so misunderstanding, his mother fretful—cold. And his proud old father—Oh, Hester, when you brought your fine gentleman to meet me, when Garth Stephens fulfilled your ambitious desire and married your humble friend, neither you nor I could see the days of gloomy forbearance ahead. I can only be glad that they were but days and months, not years. My little one—how will she grow in such a shadow-garden? I would have her happy, as I was happy and gay of heart in grandfather's cheery cottage, far up in the hills. So I shall leave for her the name of 'Gay.'"

I went as often as I might to visit Rosalind's child after her mother's death. But the visiting was not as easy of accomplishment as one would expect. The grim, dominating grandmother, guarded jealously—one might say spitefully—her son's daughter. She would brook no meddling from outsiders. And Garth Stephens was, as always, quietly acquiescent to his mother's management. The old man—Miser Stephens, some called him—ignored me in a manner that I could not overlook, even while carrying out my promise to Rosalind. This motor trip of yours, Gordon, will take you almost to the gates of Glenmore. Will you bring me news of my dead friend's daughter? And if you find her as sorrowful in the shadow of that gloomy family as my little Rosalind was sorrowful will you try to persuade them to allow her to come to me for a visit? I would eagerly write the invitation."

Gordon frowned over the thought of his disagreeable task as his car drew up before the gates of Glenmore. He smiled as the gates were thrown wide by an aged servant. Beyond the white-haired servant sat an old, bent gentleman—gentleman in every detail of manner and clothing; and at the old gentleman's side sat, on the marble bench, a wrinkled old lady.

"Sir," asked the old gentleman, "your name?" And when Gordon had given it, with the name of his mother for reminder, the old lady sent the old servant in search of Garth Stephens. He came soon, courteous in greeting.

Then, down the flower-bordered path, toward them all, came a light, dancing figure. She wore a white frock and carried in her arms roses which she had gathered. The young girl's lips curled delightfully at their red corners. Her blue eyes glanced at the visitor, and in their depths shone a merry twinkle.

Gordon Dare caught his breath; he had not believed in love at first sight. Now, his one desire was to keep this lively, happy vision close, that he might bring forth that radiant smile—that he might gaze, his troubles forgotten, in the warmth of those clear blue eyes.

Garth Stephens spoke gently: "This," he said, "is my daughter, Mr. Dare—our very light of laughter. Years ago this was a gloomy old place enough; and we were badly needing sunshine. Then Gay came to us to bear with us, to brighten us."

"Father!" cried the daughter, rosily confused.

"He always will talk that way," she indulgently told the visitor. But some time later, as the visitor lingered long in the town of Glenmore, Gay refused the invitation sent by Gordon's mother, with this explanation: "They need me in this big, dreary house, to keep them happy. The two dear grandparents will not long be with us. I have my mother's last will to carry out—to the end. Shall I tell you? When I was a very little girl I found this note in a golden locket she left for me: "My little Gay—so I name you. For I would give you, if I might bestow it, a life of pure happiness, that you yourself might be a very light of laughter."

"And so, you see, how, then could I be happy were I not making others so?"

"And that," said Gordon Dare, slowly, "is your reading of your mother's wish? Then, dear heart, I shall never know happiness again apart from you. Will you give me—some time—the sunshine of your presence forever?"

"That time," answered Gay, softly, "will be the fulfillment of my happiness."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

RECORDING SPEEDOMETERS USED ON CARS IN SWEDEN

New Law Compels the Use of Device Which Will Give Positive Evidence of Speed.

Unusual measures for preventing automobile accidents and an entirely original idea for keeping the speeding nuisance in check are features in the new motor traffic laws which have just been passed by the Swedish riksdag.

A striking paragraph in the new law
is that which provides for the compulsory use of recording speedometers on all motor vehicles. Such a device not only indicates the number of miles the
car has run, but also the rate of speed during any part of the run. Thus, on the one hand, the innocent driver who may be wrongly accused of exceeding speed limits has a mechanical record
with which to prove his innocence,
while officers of the law can use the automatic record as irrefutable evidence against the guilty speeder.

Up to the present no recording speedometer for automobiles has been perfected, but promising experiments with such an instrument are being conducted, and the new law provides that as soon as the mechanical problem has been solved the government has the power to require the use of recording speedometers.

Drivers' licenses, under the new Swedish law, shall be issued only to persons who can pass the eye and ear tests prescribed by doctors. Each application must also be accompanied by a testimonial signed by a local motor traffic inspector to the effect that the applicant is known to be of sober habits and of orderly conduct.

The new speed limits in Sweden for passenger cars are 22 miles an hour in the city and 28 miles an hour in
the country.

THEY FEED HUBBY STEAKS

Butcher Shop Census Shows That's Favorite Buy With Gotham Housewives.

The New York meat council is seeking first-hand facts about the feeding of husbands. The council's agents visited 150 butcher shops and discovered that 38 per cent of the husband-feeding wives buy steaks for their providers.

Twenty-six per cent demand lamb
chops for the husbandly appetite.
Eighteen per cent buy pork chops.
Eighteen per cent take home an arm-
ful of chopped meat (hamburger).

There is an economic side to the question that arouses comment. Steaks, demanded most, constitute less than
a quarter of the entire beef carcass.
Steaks sell for 52 and 58 cents a pound.
Lamb chops are but a small fraction
of the whole lamb and they are costly
—42 cents a pound. Pork chops are less expensive and hamburger is cheapest.

LATIN "AS SHE IS SPOKE"

Guide Is Weak on Vocabulary, but
Strong on Facts.

A guide at the state capitol, at Jefferson City, Mo., whose duty it is to escort sightseers through the new building, to show the points of beauty and explain the oil paintings, brought his party to rest a few days ago in the governor's reception room. One of the women wanted to know the price of the Persian rug on the floor. The guide had some figures handy; the women
did not question his veracity.

But presently she spied the figure of the state seal, which looks down from almost every nook and corner of the building.

"What is that, 'Salus populi suprema
lex esto?'" asked the woman, reading
the motto on the seal.

"To tell the truth, lady," spoke the guide without a moment's hesitation,
"those words are Greek, but in English they mean, 'The best men get the jobs.'"

LOW DRIVES KILL TWO BIRDS

British Golfers' Hard Hits Wing Larks
in Flight.

Although birds have often been killed by driven golf balls, the experience of two players on the Thorpe
Hall course, Essex, England, is probably unique, for each accounted for
one bird in the same round.

Driving a long, low shot from the tenth tee, W. L. Wass saw his ball hit a titlark and cut it cleanly in two.

Ten minutes later Wass' partner, A.
F. Hart, playing a mashie shot down
the twelfth fairway, struck a singing lark in flight, killing it outright.

The birds are to be stuffed and set up in the club lounge—already the home of a partridge and a greenfinch killed some years ago by members in play.

TUMOR TAKEN FROM BRAIN

Second Operation of Kind in Surgical
History Proves a Success.

For the second time in the history
of medical science, a German surgeon
has successfully operated for removal of tumor on the brain and cure of the rare attendant ailment, "Jackson
epilepsy."

The operator was the famous Berlin
surgeon, Professor Unger of the Virs-
chow hospital, who was assisted by Professor Mendel, noted neurologist.

Unger cut into the left side of the skull and thence into the brain, removing the tumor as big as a man's fist, which rested almost at the base of the brain.

THREE MILLIONS ARE HOMELESS

Japanese Refugees Swarm to the Open Country.

TOTAL CASUALTIES 500,000

Only a Few Buildings Remain in Yokohama, the Greatest Japanese Port—Thousands of Dead Piled Along the Countryside—Outbreak of Pestilence Feared—Hundred Foreigners Among Victims.

Shanghai, China, Sept. 5.—The Japanese ministry of marine estimates the number of dead in Tokio at 150,000, at Yokohama 100,000, Nagoya 50,000 and Yokosuka 50,000. Total casualties, it was feared, would be 500,000.

Communication with the cities and villages to the north and east of Tokio has been cut off, but it is believed that more than 100,000 perished from the quake, fire and tidal wave in that section.

The damage in Tokio alone was placed at $2,500,000,000.

The emperor, empress and prince regent are safe at Osaka, which has, temporarily, been made the capital.

Prince Shimidzu was crushed to death at Oiso when a building collapsed. Prince Hirotsada was killed in the collapse of the Sasako tunnel. More than 600 others were killed when the full force of the quake brought the mountain down on the moving train.

Yokohama is still smoldering. The latest report from the greatest Japanese port is that only a few buildings remain.

Three million people are homeless and most of them are swarming in gigantic crowds to the open country beyond Fujiyama.

Embassies Wrecked.

Details that trickled into Osaka from the disaster area report that the buildings of the Chinese, American, French and other embassies in Tokio were among the structures entirely wrecked by the fire, quake and terrific storm.

Two million homeless Japanese spread over the outskirts of Tokio are reported to be in great suffering, with women and children, as usual, bearing the brunt of the misfortune. Thousands of dead are piled along the countryside rotting and decaying. Starvation and disease overshadow everything else, and desperate attempts are being made by the horror-stricken living to prevent the great disaster from being increased in its fatal consequences by the addition of pestilence and plague.

In spite of the ruthless burning of the dead an outbreak of pestilence is seriously threatening because lack of drinking water is forcing hundreds of thousands to quench their thirst with polluted river water.

Thousands are reported to have been badly wounded while trying to approach relief storehouses without regard to the warning threatened by barred bayonets. Hundreds of refugees were killed.

American Envoy Escaped.

American Ambassador Cyrus R. Wood and his family escaped death when their embassy crumbled to the ground as the terrible earthquake of Saturday vibrated death and destruction throughout Tokio, Yokohama and thousands of surrounding villages. Among the cities destroyed were Tokio, Yokohama, Nagoya, Odawara, Mito, Chiba, Kawaguchi, Kofu, Gotemba, Koyama, Mishima, Atama, Mo, Yokosuka and Shimoda.

Late reports from Yokohama and Tokio state that at least 100 foreigners were killed in these cities. Japanese newspaper men who have arrived at Osaka confirm this detail and bring terrifying descriptions of what they saw in the doomed area. These newspaper men say that the British consul at Yokohama was killed.

When the Fujiyama spinning mills, housed in great modern buildings, collapsed in the quake not more than a dozen of the 8,000 employees escaped death.

A Japanese consular officer here said that the disaster will throw Japan back a generation, and the destruction of its naval bases and many of its naval craft will bring its position as a naval power far below many European nations that before the quake were able to muster far less naval strength than Japan.

An illustration of the terrific force of the earth convulsions that brought in its wake the terror of fire and tidal wave is the report from Tokio that the mountains Kamoyama, Noge-yama and Iseiyama, on the Izu peninsula, were practically leveled in the upheaval. Later dispatches confirmed the disappearance of Ochi-ma, which is 25 miles due south of Tokio and said that not a single soul had survived to tell of the swallowing up of the island with its 6,200 inhabitants.

At Tokio the river Sumida, which flows through the city, was changed in its course by the quake and its waters were covered with bodies for several miles.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—Ohio has paid adjusted compensation totaling $27,713,738.84 to 206,084 Ohio veterans of the world war, according to a report made by Bonus Director Roberts. Payments during August amounted to $81,074.60. Average claim since payments were commenced has been $134.47. Administrative expenses since the department began operations have been $183,154.93.

Highway Contracts Awarded.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—Director of Highways Boulay announced the granting of contracts amounting to $600,257.88 for the construction of highways in Belmont, Franklin, Jefferson, Lawrence, Mahoning, Portage and Trumbull counties. Materials stipulated in the contracts were either bituminous, macadam or brick.

ITALY VIOLATED LEAGUE PACT

Delegates Assembled at Geneva Express Opinions.

DISCUSS MUSSOLINI'S OFFER

Italian Premier Would Refer to The Hague Court the Question of the League's Competence to Adjudicate the Greco-Italian Dispute—Proposal Not Taken Seriously at Geneva.

Geneva, Sept. 5.—Premier Mussolini's proposal to refer to the court of international justice at The Hague the question of the league of nations' competence to adjudicate the Greco-Italian dispute is not taken seriously here. There is nothing for the court to decide.

The covenant of the league of nations lays down explicitly the procedure to be followed. Both Italy and Greece voluntarily bound themselves by the treaty to the league. Greece has observed it; Italy has violated it and taken the law into her own hands, say delegates here.

If, however, Mussolini is anxious that The Hague court should formally declare that he has broken the covenant, the matter can be arranged without delay. The court is in session and can be called on by the council as a matter of urgency to deal with the matter immediately.

M. Politis, the Greek delegate, proposed to the council the appointment of representatives to supervise the inquiry which Greece is already conducting into the murder of General Tellini and his associates. He has also asked the council to appoint a commission of three high magistrates—one Italian, one Greek and one neutral—to sit at Geneva and decide the amount of indemnity Greece must pay and offers to deposit immediately in a Swiss bank the full amount of 50,000,000 lire demanded by Mussolini as a guarantee of the willingness of Greece to pay any sum the commission decides.

The session of the league assembly was marked by three disquieting incidents: First, the commission for legal and judicial matters of the league assembly elected former President Motta of Switzerland, the Swiss delegate, chairman of the subcommittee, over the distinguished Italian jurist, former Foreign Minister Scialoja; second, when the assembly elected its vice presidents the Italian delegation did not vote, and, third, six vice presidents were elected, but none of them were Italians. It is understood that none of them wished to serve. These straws in the wind may indicate trouble.

"ITALY'S HONOR AT STAKE"

Mussolini Resents Interference on the Part of League of Nations.

Rome, Sept. 5.—Premier Mussolini of Italy made the following statement:

"If the league of nations persists in its intention to interfere in Italy's personal affair of honor with Greece, Italy may be forced to leave the league. I respect the aims of the league, but deny that there is anything in the pact providing for her intervention in such cases as the present, which touches the honor of Italy. The pact only speaks of 'danger of war.' There is no danger of war now. It is a question merely of the simple execution of justice. When French sailors were slain in Athens in 1916, France imposed similar severe conditions on Greece such as Italy imposes now. I shall hold Corfu until Greece obeys without qualification all of our demands. If Greece commits further outrages on Italian subjects I shall commence repressive military measures immediately."

Liquor Permits to Be Revoked.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—During the month of August, Federal Prohibition Director J. E. Russell announced, more than 40 druggists and physicians were cited for revocation of their permits for violations of the federal prohibition laws. A few weeks ago Russell issued a warning to physicians and druggists against violations of the liquor laws, declaring at that time that a number of doctors and druggists had become bootleggers.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Knight Attacks Taft Act.

Wooster, O., Sept. 5.—Former Congressman Charles L. Knight of Akron, speaking at a Kiwanis club luncheon here, declared "Ohio has the worst taxation laws in the United States and we are doing our best to perpetuate them." He condemned the Taft taxation act, which, he said, if allowed to stand, means that henceforth and indefinitely, the burden of taxation in Ohio must be borne by real estate, while the intangible wealth of the state goes untaxed. The act, he declared, should be nullified by the people.

Former Matron Seriously Ill.

Columbus, Sept. 5.—John McNamara, assistant welfare director, left for Deer Park, Md., to bring back Mrs. McNamara, former matron of the Girls' Industrial home, who has been there for the past two weeks. Mrs. McNamara went to the resort with a hope of her failing health being improved, but a message from there was to the effect that her physical condition was no better and that the attending physician had recommended her immediate return to her home.

Straw Referendum Proposed.

Cleveland, Sept. 5.—Efforts to secure votes for a straw referendum on modification of the Volstead act to permit the use of light wine and beer are under way in Cleveland. Representatives of the National Liberal Alliance, Washington, are preparing to place ballot boxes in theaters, stores and on street corners.

Two Men Found Dead.

Mansfield, O., Sept. 5.—Two farmers, Cashel Adams, 77, and Christian Kinsey, 71, were found dead on their farms. Heart trouble is given as the cause in each instance. Mr. Adams started to a field where his nephew, Delos Adams, was plowing. He was found lying in the field dead. Mr. Kinsey died on top of a straw stack.

Diver Dies.

Cincinnati, Sept. 5.—His eagerness to show a woman companion how well he could dive caused the death of Albert Fernthell, 26, of Mount Washington, a suburb. He was rowing with her two miles north of Coney Island in the Ohio river at the time. He is believed to have struck a submerged snag.

Murder Victims Buried.

Ottawa, O., Sept. 5.—Five thousand persons attended the funeral of Miss Olivia Tenwalde, her mother, Mrs. William Tenwalde, and her cousin, Lawrence Tenwalde, for whose murder Charles Shank, 40, farm laborer, is being sought. The three were shot to death Saturday night.

Street Fatalities.

Cleveland, Sept. 5.—Ida Wolf, 60, was killed when struck by an automobile. Charles Abell, 63, Lakewood, suffered a fractured skull when struck by a streetcar.

Struck by Trolley Car.

Marietta, O., Sept. 5.—J. D. Thompson, 59, district superintendent of the Southern Oil company, was killed and three others hurt when his car was struck by an interurban car.

Bandits Hold Up Bank.

Greenville, O., Sept. 5.—Two bandits held up the Farmers' National bank here and escaped in an automobile with $5,000 after eluding a posse. When the men entered the bank they compelled President Joseph Menke and the clerks to lay on the floor and rifled several money drawers.

RED CROSS RELIEF PLANS APPROVED

Coolidge Urges American People to Assist Japan.

NATIONWIDE DRIVE UNDER WAY

Government Putting All Its Available Resources at Work to Provide Relief For the Stricken People—Many Vessels With Supplies Ordered to the Scene of the Great Disaster. Activity at Capital.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The government is putting all resources it properly can at work to provide relief for stricken Japan, it was announced at the White House.

The formulation of relief plans was the chief business before President Coolidge. The executive is in close touch with the state, war and navy departments, the shipping board, the Red Cross, the agencies through which the relief work will be carried on.

An outstanding development was the approval by the president of plans of the Red Cross immediately to launch a nationwide drive for a $5,000,000 relief fund. The plans were laid before the president by Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wadsworth, officers of the Red Cross and vice-chairman Fisher, of that organization.

Telegrams have gone to every Red Cross chapter, to start the fund raising campaign. There will be state, city and town quotas allotted after the manner of the war drives.

Secretary of War Weeks went over with the president plans of the war department to send relief supplies to Japan. The transports Meigs and Merrick, with a combined carrying capacity of 16,000 tons, have been ordered to proceed from Manila with all possible speed carrying tents, cots, medical supplies, food, etc. General Reid is in charge of this expedition.

The navy department already is rushing relief from Cebu, China, under command of Rear Admiral Anderson. Likewise the shipping board has ordered vessels within one day of Tokio to proceed there and others in Asiatic waters to report to Admiral Anderson for instruction.

The Red Cross relief plans, before being submitted to President Coolidge, were laid before Ambassador Hanihara of Japan, who approved them and expressed the appreciation of his government for the tender of assistance to his people.

At the White House, a spokesman for President Coolidge characterized the Japanese cataclysm as without a parallel in world history, declaring that there had been a greater loss of life and destruction of property than mankind had ever before known. It was stated for the president that the people of the United States and the government want to give every possible assistance and relief to the stricken nation across the Pacific, and in so doing are performing a service that evidences the friendship of America for Japan.

AMERICANS INCLUDED

Hundred Foreigners Perish in the Japanese Disaster.

Kobe, Japan, Sept. 5.—At least 100 foreigners, many of them Americans, have perished in the great Japanese disaster, refugees arriving here from the quake zone said.

Several of the refugees said that the loss of life and destruction in the countryside was almost as heavy as in Tokio and Yokohama, and that the total deaths probably would be 500,000.

A Japanese newspaper man, who walked more than 50 miles to get to a telegraph station, said the destruction in cities and villages was complete and confirmed the estimates of half a million fatalities.

Effects of the earthquake are summarized as follows: Five hundred thousand dead, 3,000,000 homeless, 350,000 houses destroyed in Tokio, $3,000,000,000 damage.

COOLIDGE CONFERS WITH DRY CHIEF

More Rigid Enforcement of Prohibition Laws Planned.

Washington, Sept. 5.—President Coolidge moved to "learn conditions as they exist and what can be done for a proper enforcement of the prohibition law."

For almost two hours the president conferred at the white house with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, who returned to his desk after an absence of five weeks on account of illness. It was the president's first official move looking toward a more rigid and effective enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

At the conclusion of the conference Haynes said the president expressed himself as well pleased with the reports he made to him of what had been done in the past and of what was being done now.

The conference centered around plans for bringing about a closer coordination between state and federal enforcement agencies, Haynes said. The president is not decided as yet just how this should be brought about. He is considering two suggestions, calling a conference of governors in Washington or issuing a proclamation appealing to the states to co-operate more fully with the federal authorities.

'PARKA MAN' HAD ONE REGRET

Highwayman Did Not Recognize His Own Pastor—Bishop Was Not Robbed.

Bishop Rowe recently went on record with the following "favorite story": "A fellow known as the 'blue parka man' had been stationing himself between Fairbanks and the mine some twenty miles away, and robbing people at the muzzle of a Winchester. A parka is a sort of shirt that fits tight at the wrists, with a hood attachment. The front part of the hood closes with a puckering string, leaving only a place for the wearer to look out of. The 'blue parka man' did well at his enterprise for some months and terrorized those who had to travel between Fairbanks and the mines. I was one of a quartette that had to make a trip one afternoon. People told us about the 'blue parka man,' but it was necessary to take the chance. The 'blue parka man' did get us, making us lay all our money on the ground at the muzzle of his rifle. 'Do you rob ministers, too?' I asked him. 'Depends on who they are,' replied the 'blue parka man.' 'I'm Bishop Rowe of the Episcopal church.' 'Wh-a-t!' the 'blue parka man' exclaimed. 'I'm ashamed of myself for not recognizing you, bishop, and I'll not rob you. Hell! I'm a member of your church!'"

Sentimental Telegram.

Literary art is seldom employed in the composition of telegrams. But a writer in the London Express knows of a man who does aim at elegance in his telegraphic style, though with another purpose than the gratification of his own taste. When the man is in the country, says the Express, he writes beautiful telegrams to his aunts in town on the least provocation. Here is a typical one: "What pleasing prospect nature offers in evening eye delighted with distant groves fields meadows cows sheep soul soothed awed contemplation of infinite will you send on another twenty pounds temporarily short Henry." And he usually gets it, too!

Boob the Bookman.

Ima Boob got a job as porter in a book store and, during the absence of the proprietor and clerks, undertook to wait on a customer. "This here is a funny place," he said afterward, "and maybe there ain't some dumbbells floatin' in and out of this store. A man that looked as if he had some sense came in this morning and I walks right up to him as pleasant as I could. 'Let me see "The Spenders,"' he said, and I had a notion to say somethin' sarcastic-like, but I didn't. I says nicely, 'Gents' furnishing goods next door,' and he busted right out laffin' in my face. The idea of looking for 'spenders in a book shop.'"

Opportunity Passed.

Dorothy was heard impatiently calling for her sister, Jane, but received no answer. When Jane finally did answer her, Dorothy was crying heart-brokenly. When asked what the trouble was she replied, "Well, I called Jane so long I forgot what I wanted to call her for."

According to history the first profile taken was that of Antigonous, who was thus portrayed because he had only one eye. Most of the Roman emperors were also thus pictured.

Revolutionists are not made, they come. A revolution is as natural a growth as an oak. It comes out of the past. Its foundations are laid far back.—Wendell Phillips.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

LEGION SEEKS MISSING MAN

Mother Appeals to Organization to Help Locate Her Son, Boyd Martin McClure.

Diligent search is being made for Boyd Martin McClure, a World war veteran, who formerly served in the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth, One Hundred and Thirtieth and Four Hundred and Seventieth aero squadrons, until December, 1918. To the efforts of the various civil organizations, government agencies have added their services in the quest for the missing man.

McClure, whose mother resides in McKenzie, Tenn., enlisted in the army in Great Falls, Mont., in August, 1917. Prior to that time he had been employed by the Great Northern railway as a fireman. He reached England while in the service, but was returned and discharged, leaving for the West. According to reports made by investigators, he worked for the Great Northern after his return. He is said to have lost his personal effects in a fire which destroyed a railroad hotel in Fargo, N. D., among which was his army discharge, which had previously been sent to him by his mother.

In May, 1922, he made application to the executive secretary of the Red Cross in Billings, Mont., for a certificate of discharge in lieu of the lost original. Further trace of the man was found at the Salvation Army headquarters in that city, where McClure was a guest about this time, but the man disappeared in June, 1922. No trace has been found since that time, though it is believed that he may be at work in the Dakotas or Montana.

McClure's mother is said to be in need of help at her home in Tennessee and seeks the assistance of the American Legion in locating her son, though she fears he is dead or a patient in some hospital, because of an illness which followed an attack of influenza while in service.

At the time of enlistment the man was twenty-two years of age. He was six feet in height, weighed about 146 pounds, had brown eyes, brown hair, fair complexion, upper teeth slightly protruding. Any member of the Legion or other person in possession of information concerning this man should address Mrs. U. G. McClure, McKenzie, Tenn.

MANY CHAPLAINS TO ATTEND

Clergymen of All Denominations Expected at National Legion Convention in October.

World war chaplains will receive special attention at the national convention of the American Legion in San Francisco next October. Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, convention chairman, has announced. A committee, comprising prominent clergymen of San Francisco and California, all of whom served as army, navy or marine chaplains during the World war, will be charged with the reception of hundreds of visiting "padres" expected to attend the convention.

Maj. Joseph P. McQuaide, former chaplain of the Sixty-second Artillery regiment, and a participant in the campaigns in the Philippines, has been appointed chairman of the chaplains' committee. Major McQuaide already has communicated with Father William P. O'Connor of Cincinnati, Legion national chaplain, in regard to convention arrangements for the chaplains.

Jewish rabbis, Protestant ministers, Catholic priests and chaplains of all other denominations, are represented on the convention committee. Estimating from forecasts made by National Adjt. Lemuel Bolles and figures gathered by officials of the San Francisco convention and Tourist league, the civic organization that aids in obtaining convalesces for the city, the national convention committee plans to entertain 150,000 visiting American war veterans during convention week.

To Have Official Band.

Kansas is to have an official band at the San Francisco convention of the American Legion this year. The band will be chosen at a state-wide competition to be held in conjunction with the state convention at Hays early this fall. Plans for a drum corps competition also are to be considered.

Scouts to Use Legion Camp.

Boy scouts of Toledo, O., will camp at the island home of Toledo post of the American Legion this summer, according to plans just announced. The Legion post maintains a camp on the island, named in honor of former National Commander Frederick W. Galbraith, Jr., of the Legion.

Signs Compensation Bill.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania has signed a bill passed by the state legislature which provides for payment of compensation for World war veterans in the event that a $35,000,000 bond issue for that purpose is approved by the voters at the next general election.

One Blenheim an Red Squirrel.

The red squirrel is a great favorite in the country districts, where its pranks and habits are well known, says Nature Magazine. In some places it is called the pine squirrel or chickaree. It has one bad habit. It is very fond of eating the eggs of several of our song birds. Otherwise it feeds upon pine seeds and those of some plants, as well as buds and insects. It ranges over a large part of eastern North America.

Needed Attachment.

"I took the telephone operator out fishing with us," said Bowers. "She had just got her line in when a big bass pulled it, line and all, into the water." "What did she do?" inquired Loveland, with considerable interest. "She munched her gum for a few minutes, then said placidly: 'The line is busy.'"—Kansas City Star.

Serving His Age.

Whatever a man's sentiments are upon mature deliberation, it will still be necessary for him in a conspicuous work to preserve his undertaking from censure, and to accommodate his designs to the gust of the age he lives in, though it appears to him less rational.—Sir Christopher Wren.

HOOSIER

—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

—the Only Kitchen Convenience that Adjusts Your Work-Table to Suit Your Height

Gymnasium instructors have a little trick of asking new members of their classes to hold their hands above their heads and open and close their fingers. After a minute or two the student usually suffers an acute pain in the muscles. Yet opening and closing the fingers is a simple, natural operator. It's the unnatural position in which the arms are held which wears one out.

Unless your work-table is adjusted to the proper height to suit your individual build, you stand in an unnatural position which puts a muscle strain on arms and back for such movements as rolling dough and beating eggs.

That is why so many women wear themselves out at their kitchen work. It is also why women who own the new HOOSIER are freed from such muscle-strains. For the new HOOSIER gives you a work-table adjusted to your comfort.

An initial payment as low as $1.00 will put a HOOSIER in your home.

New Straightline Coats for Travel

Wrap-Around Garment and Egyptian Embroidery Bid for Favor

The new straightline wrap-around coats with Egyptian embroidery running horizontally are the latest thing in travel coats, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. One designer makes a cape of dark blue serge that extends to the waist in front and to the knees in back, flaring in a circle. A scarf of red and black folds around the neck and hangs down to the hips on the side front, being held in place by the belt of the dark blue dress beneath.

There are as many ways of varying the cape suit for travel as there are couturiers in Paris, but the general rule is that it must be made of some practical wool material, with the cape not more than hip length in front. The scarf, in combination with the cape, is seen on many of these models.

Suits for travel have short coats and plain, rather short skirts. They are very trim and very untrimmed, except for unusual stitching, braid and buttons. The pocket is usually a feature of these suits, and if it is inconspicuous it is advertised by the use of a decorative little handkerchief.

Travel Coat in Which Green and Gray Drapella Are Combined, Using Green for Pointed Sections on Cape Collar, Sleeves and Hip Band.

Leather for travel suits is sometimes used. Another designer makes suits of suede that are very smart and useful.

There are long wraps for the journey which are loose affairs with fur collars. These are very bold in effect, having wide ten-inch stripes of contrasting colors, or are in plaids of many colors. The fur collar is often times dyed to match the color of the stripes. Such coats are usually worn over dresses.

For wear with suits there are waist-length capes similar to the coats just described. Coats and capes of this sort are extremely practical for traveling, as they do not crease easily.

Many Kinds of Gloves to Please All Tastes

Fancy gauntlet gloves, very short, with flared cuffs elaborately embroidered, or in double or triple tier effect, sum up the fashions in gloves.

The white glaze kid glove embroidered in color or in black, with fancy gauntlet cuffs, is the newest note, and is worn irrespectively with long or short-sleeved gowns.

Mastic suede gloves in two-tone effects, namely, stitched in a darker tone in tan or brown silk also are fashionable. Two-tone and two-color combinations are very good; also black with a color, or white with a color.

Multi-colored embroideries are used in novelty gloves sold by the high-class specialty shops. There is less demand for black glaze kid, although novelty gauntlets in glaze kid embroidered in colored silk and in metal are still represented. No gloves are worn with evening dresses.

Let in the Sun.

In the old days, blinds and curtains were kept down in the home to exclude the sun for fear its rays would fade some precious carpet or rug. Now sun and air are welcomed gladly and people live longer and happier because they know better.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

All Are Costumes.

In these days, nothing is a separate garment, each piece of clothing makes up a costume. Two and three-piece suits continue to be the rage.

High Collars.

A very high collar of organdie has made its appearance. It is bordered with midnight blue and scarlet organdie.

Jacquette Is Knitted in Odd Loose Stitch

In tangerine and nickel gray, with solid gray collar, cuffs and bottom, this knitted jacquette will appeal to many young women.

More Elastic Being Used in Wearables

More and more of women's clothes are being "made on elastics," and this simple arrangement is a decided improvement over old-fashioned, complicated fastenings. One never hears of any woman wanting to go back to using a multitude of pins, still there is the question, "How do you manage the elastics in your camisoles and bloomers? Do they always go to pieces in the first washing?"

A little care and thought expended in the purchase of this very necessary little article in the first place would eliminate half of the future trouble. The characteristics of a good elastic, for which you are to look when shopping, are a fine strong yarn used in its construction, and which insures you a neat, compact fabric; and a rubber which is sturdily elastic when stretched.

The difference in the way elastics are made divides them into two types, the woven and the braided.

Wide elastics, and that used for arm bands, garters and hose supporters, are usually woven. To make this woven elastic, the warp threads of yarn, and of rubber are set up on the loom together, the rubber being stretched to equal the length of the warp threads. The yarns used in making elastic webbing may be cotton, mercerized cotton, artificial silk and silk. Good yarn has a lot to do with the wearing quality of your elastic. The "filling" or weft threads are put in in such a way that they are held in place by being woven through the warp threads, and so as to cover completely and protect the rubber.

In buying braided elastic, you can get either the flat or the tubular. The rubber threads run lengthwise in the flat elastic, and have the cotton covering running diagonally over and under the elastic threads.

In the round elastic the braid is tubular, with a strand of rubber running through the center, you can also buy a combination of the flat and the round called "oval elastic."

When it comes to comparing the woven and braided elastic there is one difference that should be pointed out. Woven elastic can only stretch as far as the length of the warp threads, while braided elastic stretches much farther. So you can readily see that the strain and wear on braided elastic would naturally be much greater. If you are buying the wider widths, then, you would expect more satisfactory service from the woven elastic. But when a smaller elastic is wanted, the braided type is especially good, as it gives a neater, more finished appearance.

Experience has proved that heat, light and grease cause rubber to deteriorate very rapidly, and a note made of that fact may be a very material factor in prolonging the life of your elastic.

Utility Coat Likely to Be Fall Favorite

Pile fabric coats featuring, for the most part, straight lines with fur collars and cuffs, form a large group in the fall models. Another group consists of models developed in another type of utility coatings suggestive of, in the misses' sizes, a school type of garment, and in the women's, a practical coat for all-weather.

Camel's hair cloth, plaid fabrics and in a special group plaid-back cloth form the array of mediums used for these coats, which for the most part are marked by convertible collars of generous size, with large patch pockets, such as are indispensable in the topcoat. Others are developed on straight, semi-wrap lines.

Fur collars finish many of these models, foxes appearing often in the assortments.

Poke-Bonnet Type.

A veritable Victorian bonnet of pale green silk is one of the sort of hats young girls are wearing today. It is of the poke-bonnet type, but much smaller and fits very closely to the head. Usually the trimming is of flowers and fruit combined.

Evening Capes in Gay Colors. Changeable taffeta is an ideal material for evening capes.

A Fake Alarm.

A curious thing once occurred in a small village near Sheffield, England. One of the villagers, says a contributor to Country Life, thought he saw smoke pouring from the spire of the parish church and at once raised an alarm. The village fire brigade turned out, and in a few minutes the brigade from a neighboring town came rushing to the scene. By that time many other people agreed with the villager that they, too, saw smoke; but oddly enough no one could find any trace of fire. As a precaution, however, the firemen drenched the spire with water. Then they went home. The next morning everything was quiet, but at evening the strange clouds again began to ascend from the spire, and there was talk of summoning the fire brigades for the second time. Then the vicar had a happy thought; he went home and got his field glass. Through them he saw, not smoke, but bees! A large swarm had settled at the top of the spire, and from a distance they looked exactly like clouds of smoke eddying in the currents of the upper air.

A Queer Crossing.

Crossing a river with a pack train in Mongolia is a thing to remember. Mr. A. S. Kent in his book, "Old Tartar Trails," describes how he once crossed the Kobdo river: There were two dugouts into which we loaded our baggage, and when all was ready we first chased the ponies into the water. Then, tying a couple of ropes to the heads of the camels, we handed the ends to a native in the stern of one of the boats. Two ponies supplied the power; a Mongol, leaning over the bow of each boat, grasped a pony's tail in his right hand while he manipulated the reins with his left. In that manner we crossed the river. When we got into shallow water near the opposite bank and the camels that we were towing astern were able to touch ground with their feet they floundered under the dugout and all but succeeded in upsetting us. It was several hours before we caught the ponies, which had broken loose, and were ready to start again.

All in the Point of View.

On the occasion of her fiftieth birthday, the many friends and admirers of Princess Pauline Metternich, one of the celebrities of the court of Napoleon III, foregathered at Vienna to pay their respects to her. While all were complimenting her on her unimpaired health and youthfulness, one somewhat tactless well-wisher remarked enthusiastically: "After all, what do fifty years amount to?" To which the princess wittily replied: "Nothing for a cathedral, but a good deal—for a woman!"

Predecessors of the Pianoforte.

The pianoforte as it is today in its essential parts, i. e., in the organism which produces the sound, is very little different from (we may almost say perfectly similar to) the first instrument with hammers, invented by Bartolomeo Cristofori of Padua at the beginning of the Eighteenth century, writes Guido M. Gatti, in Musical News and Herald. The last two hundred years which saw such brilliant developments of mechanics have not produced anything more perfect and more efficient than that simple and genial combination of levers which did away entirely with the old system of Saltarelli (harpsichord jacks), and thenceforth reigned supreme.

Let the Children Paint.

Children like to paint. Many mothers dislike to have their children use water colors because they soil their dresses and handkerchiefs, as well as hands. If the child is fond of painting he should be permitted to do it. Mother can provide him with a newspaper and let him experiment until he cuts a pattern for an apron, then give him a piece of cambric, muslin, gingham, percale or satin and let him cut and make a painting apron. This he may don at painting time, and thus protect other clothing.

THRIFT and EDUCATION

We think that "Thrift" should be as much the part of the American child's education as arithmetic, geography and spelling.

Doesn't it sound rather inconsistent to teach all the fine points about MAKING MONEY without saying a word about how to TAKE CARE OF IT after it is made.

A good way to teach thrift, is for each and every parent to see that his child has a Savings Account in this solid institution.

Such a step will have a beneficial influence on the child's future character.

AGREEMENT SEEN

Miners and Operators Resume Conferences With Pinchot.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 5.—Growing optimism that the resumption of conferences between deadlocked miners and operators here today will result in some agreement whereby the anthracite coal strike will be brought to a sudden close is apparent in circles close to Governor Pinchot.

The settlement of the wage dispute is expected to be made with the original peace proposal of Governor Pinchot as a basis. No new proposal will be made. There seems to be an impression that the miners will accept the 10 per cent wage increase and the check-off plan suggested by Governor Pinchot.

Governor Pinchot refuses to discuss the situation, but he will make every effort to bring the deliberations to a successful close in sessions here this week.

SOUTH SEA GIRLS CAUSE SAILORS TO DESERT SHIP

Seductive Charms of Native Maidens Prove Irresistible.

Honolulu.—The charms of two young and beautiful native maidens at Futu, Island of Niuaufu, in the South seas, proved stronger than the call back to civilization for two members of the crew of the schooner Alert, according to the story related by Capt. Daniel McDonald, master of the Alert, who arrived here aboard the Niagara with six members of his crew. They are on their way to the United States.

A sudden squall threw the Alert upon a coral reef off Futu on June 10, Captain McDonald said. The captain and the crew waited at the place a month for a passing ship to pick them up. Meanwhile Harry Terry and A. Olson, members of the crew, fell in love with two native girls and when a rescue ship finally arrived they refused to accompany their shipmates back to civilization.

The mariners married the girls, Captain McDonald said, and added:

"I can't blame Terry and Olson for their brides are very beautiful and exceptionally good housewives."

The skipper said no suffering followed the shipwreck. The natives, he said, are very hospitable and the women, especially the younger ones, are "very beautiful."

This Man Doesn't Worry About Clothing Prices

A. T. Vanderventer of New Metamoras, O., doesn't worry about the soaring prices of clothing. He doesn't even think of the style they'll wear in the fall or any other season. He has set a precedent all his own, none with possibly one exception, seems to want to follow. His precedent is a suit, coat, vest and trousers, made not of one piece of cloth or one color, but of 2,573 pieces of many colors of pure wool. He has called it his rainbow suit, and believes it the only one of its kind since Joseph's of Biblical fame. The suit was made by Mr. Vanderventer's wife, and it required nine weeks of sewing the little pieces, cut in every conceivable shape, together. Mr. Vanderventer is seen garbed in his very odd apparel.

Find 10-Ft. Skeleton of Snake 100 Years Old

Monroe, La.—The skeleton of a huge snake measuring ten feet long, well preserved, and believed to have been more than 100 years old when it died, was found recently by a party of engineers and surveyors in a cave near Junction City, on the Louisiana-Arkansas state line. The remains of the reptile showed that it had 107 ridges, indicating its age, according to students of natural history. An aged negro living near the cave told members of the party a monster rattlesnake terrorized the section 60 years ago. Slaves set fire to the woods and it was never seen again, he said.

Auto Tow Ropes Save Injured Boy From Tide

Port Angeles, Wash.—Twelve towing ropes and cables commandeered from automobiles at Agate beach, near here, tied together and let down over a sheer 75-foot cliff, saved Carlyle Graham, sixteen years old, from the fast-incoming tide after he had fallen below and broken his leg in two places.

Whole Meal in Pill Is Scientist's Dream

A good hearty meal, all in a pill that can be carried in a vest pocket, is the dream of scientists of today, according to Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon general of the public health service. Some day dish washing and the dinner table will be gone and forgotten. The farthest scientists have progressed, according to Mr. Cummings, is to remove all the water from foods and condense them some 70 per cent.

* The Hotel Stenographer *

BY ROE FULKERSON

"There's no use trying to get rid of old people," said the Hotel Stenographer with a happy laugh.

"Who wants to get rid of those old people?" asked the House Detective.

"O, everybody thinks they do," answered the girl. "There's Persephone Dooley. When she married Dooley she told him she wasn't marrying his whole family and he needn't expect her to go to live with his mother. Dooley was mighty disappointed, but his mother told him she didn't blame her."

"One day Dooley told Perse to ask his mother to Sunday dinner. Mother said she was no experiment station for amateur cooks and Perse took advantage of this to start a quarrel with her and they didn't speak until the day after Perse came home from the hospital with her baby."

"One night it got croup and Dooley ran around the house like a crazy man till Perse told him to go get his mother. Mrs. Dooley had the baby all right in a couple of minutes and then she and Perse cried on each other's shoulders and Mrs. Dooley gave Perse a course in baby culture and they got to be friends. When old man Dooley died Perse had a fight with all the Dooleys till she got Mrs. Dooley to come and live with her. Now, when one of Perse's three children asks her if they can do anything she tells them to ask grandma. Whatever grandma says they do, or Perse spansks them good and plenty."

"Perse and Dooley won the prize waltz at the Journeyman Barbers' masked ball last night, while Grandmother Dooley tucked in the kids. When I asked Perse how it came that she let Dooley wish his mother on her she was ready to fight me."

BACK ON THE JOB.

Yee Hang, the Chinese landryman, who placed a sign on his door that the shop is closed, said on his arrival this morning that he meant "closed for one day, Labor day," but he stayed longer. He did not think that his message would be taken so seriously and that it was just a joke. Anyhow he says he is back and ready for business.

Honey Mentioned in Bible.

There are references to honey in the Bible, in the sacred books of the Hindus and in the Koran. In the Far East new honey has for ages been esteemed as a laxative and old honey as an astringent. Honey was one of the materials which the Egyptians used in embalming, and others of the ancients used it as a food preservative. There was a considerable traffic in bird's eggs and eggs packed in honey were shipped long journeys.

AWNING BURNED.

One of the workmen on the roof of the Crist block, corner Court and Main streets dropped a lighted cigaret on an awning on the Court street side of the building. The cigaret set fire to the awning and nearly a third of it was destroyed before the department arrived. The awning which cost $75 is a total loss.

PAUSE AND REFLECT

When Something is Offered for Nothing. Or Where an Extra Profit is Offered Above What is Economically Safe.

More than a hundred years have passed since Benjamin Franklin penned this warning. Yet, what a good motto it is today.

There are still with us those who would have us forget that value received and price paid must always balance. In the long run, however, people don't forget. We are building for the future. Conservation, careful judgment and careful statement were valued yesterday, are valued today and will be valued tomorrow.

A large tent was placed on the lawn where a bountiful dinner was served, to about sixty-eight. After the dinner the election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows; Harry Durrett, president and Anna Mason, secretary.

The afternoon was spent in music and visiting. In the evening ice cream and cake was served and all left thinking the day had been well spent and hoping to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin White near Grove City the last Sunday in August, 1924.

TRIAL TRIP SUCCESSFUL
Greatest of Dirigibles Launched on Her Maiden Voyage.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 5.—A voyage that will doubtlessly decide the future aerial program of the United States navy was made when the ZR-1, greatest of dirigibles, was launched on its maiden voyage. With gently purring motors and without the slightest mishap the ZR-1 took the air here and started northward at 35 miles an hour.

It was a stirring sight as the ZR-1 made ready to cast off. A ground crew of 320 marines and sailors clung to the towlines that held the big ship to the earth, and at a signal they released her and she arose gracefully, turned her nose into the north wind and sailed away. The ZR-1 rose gradually and within 20 minutes had disappeared into a cloud bank. The trial trip lasted two hours and a successful landing was made at 3:30.

EUROPEAN COURT POMP BUT LITTLE AFFECTED BY WAR

Dinner for British Royal Family Cost Ambassador Harvey More Than $8,000.

The pomp of European courts has not decreased noticeably since the war, according to reports of American diplomats to the State department.

American ambassadors are continuing their complaints of inadequate salaries to meet the heavy drain of social entertainment, and are citing post-war troubles of entertaining royalty at functions which equal or surpass the gilded affairs of prewar days in Europe.

For instance, the state dinner given recently by George Harvey, American ambassador to the Court of St. James, to the British royal family, cost the American envoy more than $8,000 for one dinner and "trimmings." In fact, the "trimmings" constituted a large part of the bill, which contained an item of $750 alone for palms and ferns given standing room in the fireplaces of the American embassy for the occasion.

Entertainment occasionally of the rulers of the nations to which they are accredited is an inescapable duty of American diplomats, who are provided with no entertainment fund to cover the costs of food and service. A few are wealthy enough to bear extraordinary expenditures for social entertainment, but the poorer ones say that the war has not toned down the "class" of the required social duties.

The higher standing abroad of the American dollar is said to help some in bearing the expense, but in many cases local traders add to their bills, in the cases of the "rich American" diplomats, more than sufficient to meet the difference in the rate of exchange.

WARN OF GALVANIZED IRON

Government Chemists Caution on Keeping Food in Such Vessels.

Warning was issued by the bureau of chemistry of the Department of Agriculture against allowing food or drink to stand even for a short time in a galvanized iron vessel; also against such a utensil in making preserves or jellies or as a container for cider or other fruit juices.

The department stated that if this warning is disregarded, some of the zinc with which the bucket or utensil is galvanized probably will be dissolved, and will not only give the food an unpleasant taste, but is very apt to cause sudden and intense illness.

Experiments carried on by federal chemists with quantities of lemonade, orangeade, milk, carbonated water, Washington city tap water and distilled water held over night in galvanized iron buckets proved that zinc contamination occurred in each case.

BARS ICE CREAM AFTER 9:30

British Regulation Cuts Off Luxury to Workers in Early Night.

England does not have to contend with prohibition but, according to the ideas of the Ice Cream and Temperance Refreshment Trades federation, the regulations against the sale of ice cream and soft drinks would make Mr. Volstead envious.

Under the present law the sale of this class of refreshment is prohibited after 9:30 p. m. The bone of contention is that the West End clubs and hotels are allowed to sell ice cream until midnight, while the working classes cannot buy it after 9:30. The regulation was enacted as a wartime measure.

The federation will urge the labor party to place the matter before the house of commons.

FIGURING EASY FOR HINDU

Young Man Performs Amazing Mental Gymnastics.

Correctly extracting the seventh root of a number containing thirty-five digits almost instantly is one of the feats of mental arithmetic demonstrated by Somesh Chandra Bose of Calcutta, India.

Bose, a slim, turbaned young Hindu, quickly multiplied figures running into millions by each other. The problems were put to him by an audience in New York.

Bose said that at the age of eight he could mentally work out multiplications involving fourteen digits. By concentration, he claims to have developed his ability until he is able to multiply sixty digits by sixty digits.

SAILS NILE ONLY

Queer Craft Is Found on No Other Waters in World.

Traveler Describes the Felucca as Egypt's Floating Crockery Shop—Crew of Two Men.

What a felucca of the Nile is, and what she carries, is thus described by an English traveler in Egypt, writing from Cairo:

Her huge canvas sail billowing from the curved yard, forging on her way like some freak swallow with one white wing, a felucca sweeps down the Nile with the combined speed of the wind and a swift current. Her crew consists of two men, who squat like monkeys high above her deck, one of them holding the vessel's halliard in his right hand while his left grasps the clumsy tiller.

But such a ship never sailed on any sea or on the waters of any river save the Nile. Her mast and sail supply her only visible connection with navigation. She looks like a floating crate, and such, indeed, she is.

Somewhere under the mountain of her cargo she has a hull of sorts. But she is piled, yards high, into a redoubt of pink and brown earthenware jars, and hundreds of similar pots, slung in nets, yards deep, on either side of her bulwarks, float her so high in the air that her keel can hardly touch the water.

The felucca is Egypt's floating crockery shop. She is on her way to Lower Egypt, bearing to Cairo and to scores of villages along the banks of the Nile the broad, cone-ended jars wherein water is carried, on the heads of fellah women, from river and well.

Her "home port" is Kena, nearly 400 miles up the Nile, which from its possession of a peculiar variety of clay has been for centuries the home in Egypt of the potter and his handiwork.

The broad-based, narrow-mouthed water-jar, or balas—whose name comes from the village near Kena where it is made—is shaped not to stand, but to balance, on a woman's head. It is familiar in all pictures of Egypt.

But the balas is not the only product of Kena's clay, though it is the chief item of native catering for natives. The custom of upper-class Egyptians and Europeans is secured by a species of clay vase, round-bodied and narrow-necked, which Egyptians called a kulleh and we, in felicitous ignorance, a "cooler."

It deserves its name, and the absorbent properties of its clay make it one of the best of natural filters. Stand one kulleh on top of another, put your water in the upper one, set the whole erection in a draught and drink from the water that has filtered through to the lower jar is the recipe for a thirst-quencher, perfectly pure and of a coolness which can be appreciated only by summer exiles in the East.

A Handy Man to Have Round.

Theodore N. Vail was a versatile man. He had been telegraph operator, baseball player, farmer and mail clerk. He could cook, too. Once when driving with Mrs. Vail, says his biographer, Mr. Albert Bigelow Paine, he stopped at a farmhouse and asked the farmer's wife to give them some dinner. She set out a pie and some cheese; they were all she had ready, she said, but he might look about.

Thereupon Mr. Vail went out into the barnyard, chased and caught a chicken, found some tomatoes and other vegetables in the garden and prepared the chicken in elaborate style with gravy and fixings; he attended to everything without assistance. It was a fine meal, and when they were ready to go he paid the farmer's wife liberally for it.

"Well," said the woman, "I should think your wife would always be afraid of losing you!"

"Why so?"

"Because you're such a good man round the house."—Youth's Companion.

Hopeful Comparisons.

"I'm glad Henrietta has learned to take such an intelligent interest in public affairs," remarked Mr. Meek-ton.

"Doesn't it take her mind off her home?"

"Once in a while. It has served to show her that the judgment of a whole lot of men is just as liable to be mistaken as mine is."

Incentive to Industry.

"Your boy Josh is very fond of the motion pictures."

"Yes," replied Farmer Cornfossel. "And I won't say they haven't been a helpful influence. There have been times this summer when I don't believe Josh would have worked at all if he hadn't needed the money to buy tickets to the show."

All Lived to Celebrate.

Six people married at the same time and in the same place celebrated their golden wedding at Petton, near Chester-Street, England, last month. All six were married at a triple wedding service on May 31, 1873, at the local parish church.

And Probably the Cat Escaped.
A dog chasing a cat was responsible for a $60,000 fire in a Glasgow garage. The animals upset a blow-lamp. Twelve cars and part of the garage were destroyed.

CALL FOR HELP

Send Contributions for Japanese Sufferers to Miss Anna Florence.

The following telegram from Governor Donahy was received by Miss Anna Florence, chairman of the Red Cross:

"Am forwarding proclamation, Japanese relief. Please tell newspapers. Subscriptions may be mailed to you as agent for the Red Cross."

The telegram tells the story. Whatever you can spare to help these people who are in sore distress owing to an earthquake last Friday followed by floods and fires and the killing of two hundred and fifty thousand people making homeless nearly two millions of people will be heartily appreciated. Radio information has merely given us bits of the terrible catastrophe. It is the greatest loss of life and property that the world has ever sustained. The havoc is indescribable and the entire world is trying to assist the stricken people to recover from the disaster that has befallen the people across the Pacific.

AMUSEMENTS

Pola Negri's first appearance in an American made Paramount picture, "Bella Donna" produced by George Fitzmaurice was greeted with marked enthusiasm at the Met theater last night.

In this absorbing picturization of Robert Hichens' famous novel, Miss Negri marries a young Englishman who has just returned from an expedition in the Egyptian desert. On their honeymoon they return to that country so that Nigel (Conrad Nagel) may continue his work. The east lays a hypnotic spell on Bella Donna and when she meets Mehamound Baroudi (Conway Tearle), intensely dramatic events ensue.

The love affair between the pair continues for a period, when Baroudi suggests that Bella Donna free herself by poisoning her husband. Nigel Armine is slowly wasting away as the result of slow poisoning but is saved by the intervention of a friend, Dr. Isacson (Claude King). Learning the truth, Nigel casts out his wife who, new free, joyfully makes her way to Baroudi's camp. He, however, is with another woman, and brutally orders her away. Bella Donna goes out alone into the desert, a tragic figure.

Miss Negri has set the world astir by her foreign made pictures, but this her first American made production, overshadows them all. It is, all in all a superb photodrama. Conway Tearle in the role of Mahmoud Baroudi, makes an unusually sinister villain, while Conrad Nagel is excellent as the meek, unsuspecting husband, Nigel Armine. Others in the cast are Lois Wilson, as Patricia, Nigel's fiancée; Marcey Harlan and Robert Schable. This is the nearest all star cast ever seen in any picture.

The big dancing and comedy number "Anabelle's Birthday on Mobile Bay" with J. A. Coburn's minstrels at the Grand theater Thursday, September 6, is said to surpass any act of its kind in several years in costuming, scenic and terpsichorean novelty and ability, combining comedy, dancing, singing and characteristic dialogue and situations between the Ole Mammy (Hank White) the pickaninies and the male and female characters composing the sketch. The hit made by former dancing acts and numbers and the new songs, dances etc., incorporated in the new show promise to make this a strong favorite on the bill. Twenty-five years of fair dealing and good faith with the public have made Coburn's minstrels ever welcome visitors to Circleville. Seats now on sale.

RAW SILK BURNED

Loss in Yokohama Will Amount to More Than $100,000,000.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—The total loss of raw silk destroyed in the Yokohama fire will amount to more than $100,000,000, it is believed, according to advices received here from Osaka. The local office of the Gao Trading company, one of the largest silk exporters in Yokohama, has received a cablegram from their Osaka agent, saying that the main office and warehouse in Yokohama were destroyed by fire. One million dollars' worth of raw silk, which was stored in the warehouse awaiting shipment to America, was burned.

Weather Bureau Forecasts Help

Of Great Importance to
Fruit-Spraying Service
of State College.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In addition to the harvest weather forecast service in New York state, the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture provides forecasts which are of great importance to the fruit-spraying service maintained by the New York State College of Agriculture. The purpose of this service is to advise fruit growers in all matters pertaining to the spraying of fruit for the control of insect and other pests.

County Agent Is Head.

The county agricultural agent is at the head of this service in each county. He bears the responsibility of notifying the growers in his county, by telephone, mail or other means, whenever a spray application is advisable. Most growers are prepared to spray immediately on receipt of his advice, and do so in accordance with his directions. New York fruit growers spend approximately $3,000,000 annually in spraying operations.

In general three to five spray applications are made each season. It is of the utmost importance that each be applied at exactly the right time, neither too early nor too late, to avoid loss of labor and material and to catch the pests under exactly right conditions. In the case of apple scab, for example, a widespread and injurious fungus pest, the scab remains practically dormant during fair weather, but becomes actively infectious during rainy spells. The ideal condition for control of this pest, therefore, is two or three days of fair weather to apply the spray, followed by a rainy period.

Forecasts Essential.

Weather forecasts are essential in connection with the control of this pest by spraying, and for practically all fruit pests. The county agent, in preparing his advice to growers, takes account of the probable weather condition for three or four days in advance and the condition of buds and fruit as reported by the field agent who travels about the county observing the development of the fruit buds and also of the various pests. Twelve counties have organized for this work, and all of them regard the weather bureau forecasts as indispensable.

Increase in Wheat Yield

Made by Oregon Farmers

An increase in yield of more than 48,000 bushels of wheat without extra labor was the reward of farmers in Union county, Oregon, following the advice of the county extension agent last winter in selecting the variety of winter wheat to be planted. The county agent had carried on an effective campaign calling the attention of wheat growers in the county to the higher yielding qualities of the variety Hybrid 128 under local conditions, as shown by the state experiment station tests. As a result, a number of farmers planted Hybrid 128 and obtained an average increase of 6.1 bushels per acre over all other varieties, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. About 92 acres of the 1922 planting was certified for seed.

Weapons to Be Employed Against Flies on Farm

If it is impossible to get rid of the breeding places of flies on the farm the best protection to the animals will be found in the use of repellants or mixtures which when applied to the animals will prevent the flies from attacking them, according to George Dean, Kansas state entomologist.

He suggests the possibility of destroying the breeding places of the horn fly, which is found in clusters on the shoulders, back and flanks of cattle in pasture, by scattering the animal droppings. Old rotting straw piles are the breeding places of the stable or biting fly, and Professor Dean suggests the advisability, if possible, of cleaning up or doing away with them.

Grit Is Most Essential to Health of Hen Flock

Grit is essential to the health of fowls and to economy in feeding. Grit takes the place of teeth in preparing the feed for further digestion and is required for the proper preparation of feed in the gizzard. When the feed is not properly taken care of in this organ an undue strain is thrown on the fowl's system, often resulting in disease, and also allowing much of the nutriment to pass through the bird's body without being absorbed. In every pen or yard a box of grit should be kept. Recent investigators have asserted that grit is part of the necessary feed, giving the fowls strong bones and a bright plumage.

Diseases of Raspberry Plants Hard to Detect

While most of the diseases which attack raspberry plants cannot be detected on the plants themselves, after they have been dug, care should be taken not to use plants which show hard knots or galls on the roots. These are likely to spread from plant to plant and the raspberry fields infected with this disease are seldom profitable.

PENNY AS TOKEN OR PLÉDGE

Derivation of Coin Comes From Such Words as "Panel," "Pane," "Counterpane," Etc.

In its original form the penny was not a coin, but a token or pledge. Its derivation comes from the same source as that from which we get the word "paw," and also such words as "panel," "pane," "counterpane," and "panicle."

The readiest pledge to leave in pawn was cloth, hence the Latin "panna," a piece of cloth. The original panel was a piece of cloth, or patch, and from this we get the word "pane" as applied to a pane of glass, and also the word "penny," its literal meaning being a pledge or token, and hence a coin. Originally the word was spelt "peny."

The word shilling really means a division of money into small parts, and is obtained from a word meaning "to divide." Thus, in the first place, it was not a coin, but an indication of money having been made up in small form.

Sterling, as applied to money, is derived from the Hanseatic league, which had an important house in England. As their land lay "to the east of England," Englishmen called them "Easterlings," and the gold they paid in the course of trade became known as "Easterling money." Subsequently the expression became sterling.

The Horse's Speed Limit.

Before our agrarian population had taken so enthusiastically to the automobile, two farmers drove into town in an old spring wagon pulled by a very bony nag. The little burg had been incorporated, and among the evidences of this was a brand-new sign at the town line: "Speed limit—10 miles an hour." Observing this, the driver began whipping up his steed vigorously.

"What's yo' hurry?" demanded his companion in mild astonishment.
"See that sign?" returned the other.
"But I dunno if I can make it or not."

LIGHT O' LAUGHTER

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"AND I wish," said Gordon Dare's mother, "that while you are on this trip you'd stop over at Glenmore and look up my old friend's daughter. Now, please do not demur, Gordon; this is an unusual request. A duty left undone by myself which has long troubled my conscience. May I tell you about it?"

The tall, dark-haired young man smiled his willingness. "But, mother," he objected, "you know how I detest these old calls of past memories. I am out for relaxation from wearisome daily conventions. Nevertheless, if that tender conscience of yours is bothering—" "I may be able to make you understand my sense of responsibility in this matter," Mrs. Dare replied, "for I have neglected Rosalind's daughter all these years. But at the back of my memory has ever been a picture that would not be banished—the picture of a great, stately room in an old mansion on the Hudson river, and in a curtained bed my little friend, Rosalind, dying. Like some hurt child she lay, and turned her tired blue eyes to me.

"Hester," she begged, "you will see that they make my baby happy. She is such a tiny thing—no larger than my last doll. I would have my little daughter the very light of laughter—so I had planned, had I been spared. I have suffered in my husband's home; he so misunderstanding, his mother fretful—cold. And his proud old father—Oh, Hester, when you brought your fine gentleman to meet me, when Garth Stephens fulfilled your ambitious desire and married your humble friend, neither you nor I could see the days of gloomy forbearance ahead. I can only be glad that they were but days and months, not years. My little one—how will she grow in such a shadow-garden? I would have her happy, as I was happy and gay of heart in grandfather's cheery cottage, far up in the hills. So I shall leave for her the name of 'Gay.'"

I went as often as I might to visit Rosalind's child after her mother's death. But the visiting was not as easy of accomplishment as one would expect. The grim, dominating grandmother, guarded jealously—one might say spitefully—her son's daughter. She would brook no meddling from outsiders. And Garth Stephens was, as always, quietly acquiescent to his mother's management. The old man—Miser Stephens, some called him—ignored me in a manner that I could not overlook, even while carrying out my promise to Rosalind. This motor trip of yours, Gordon, will take you almost to the gates of Glenmore. Will you bring me news of my dead friend's daughter? And if you find her as sorrowful in the shadow of that gloomy family as my little Rosalind was sorrowful will you try to persuade them to allow her to come to me for a visit? I would eagerly write the invitation."

Gordon frowned over the thought of his disagreeable task as his car drew up before the gates of Glenmore. He smiled as the gates were thrown wide by an aged servant. Beyond the white-haired servant sat an old, bent gentleman—gentleman in every detail of manner and clothing; and at the old gentleman's side sat, on the marble bench, a wrinkled old lady.

"Sir," asked the old gentleman, "your name?" And when Gordon had given it, with the name of his mother for reminder, the old lady sent the old servant in search of Garth Stephens. He came soon, courteous in greeting.

Then, down the flower-bordered path, toward them all, came a light, dancing figure. She wore a white frock and carried in her arms roses which she had gathered. The young girl's lips curled delightfully at their red corners. Her blue eyes glanced at the visitor, and in their depths shone a merry twinkle.

Gordon Dare caught his breath; he had not believed in love at first sight. Now, his one desire was to keep this lively, happy vision close, that he might bring forth that radiant smile—that he might raze, his troubles forgotten, in the warmth of those clear blue eyes.

Garth Stephens spoke gently: "This," he said, "is my daughter, Mr. Dare—our very light of laughter. Years ago this was a gloomy old place enough; and we were badly needing sunshine. Then Gay came to us to bear with us, to brighten us."

"Father!" cried the daughter, rosiely confused.

"He always will talk that way," she indulgently told the visitor. But some time later, as the visitor lingered long in the town of Glenmore, Gay refused the invitation sent by Gordon's mother, with this explanation: "They need me in this big, dreary house, to keep them happy. The two dear grandparents will not long be with us. I have my mother's last will to carry out—to the end. Shall I tell you? When I was a very little girl I found this note in a golden locket she left for me:

"My little Gay—so I name you. For I would give you, if I might bestow it, a life of pure happiness, that you yourself might be a very light of laughter."

"And so, you see, how, then could I be happy were I not making others so?"

"And that," said Gordon Dare, slowly, "is your reading of your mother's wish? Then, dear heart, I shall never know happiness again apart from you. Will you give me—some time—the sunshine of your presence forever?"

"That time," answered Gay, softly, "will be the fulfillment of my happiness."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

RECORDING SPEEDOMETERS USED ON CARS IN SWEDEN

New Law Compels the Use of
Device Which Will Give Positive Evidence of Speed.

Unusual measures for preventing automobile accidents and an entirely
original idea for keeping the speeding
nuisance in check are features in the
new motor traffic laws which have just been passed by the Swedish riksdag.

A striking paragraph in the new law
is that which provides for the compulsory use of recording speedometers on all motor vehicles. Such a device not only indicates the number of miles the
car has run, but also the rate of speed
during any part of the run. Thus, on the one hand, the innocent driver who may be wrongly accused of exceeding
speed limits has a mechanical record
with which to prove his innocence,
while officers of the law can use the
automatic record as irrefutable evidence against the guilty speeder.

Up to the present no recording speedometer for automobiles has been perfected, but promising experiments
with such an instrument are being conducted, and the new law provides that as soon as the mechanical problem has been solved the government
has the power to require the use of
recording speedometers.

Drivers' licenses, under the new Swedish law, shall be issued only to persons who can pass the eye and ear
tests prescribed by doctors. Each application must also be accompanied by a testimonial signed by a local motor traffic inspector to the effect that the applicant is known to be of sober habits and of orderly conduct.

The new speed limits in Sweden for passenger cars are 22 miles an hour
in the city and 28 miles an hour in
the country.

THEY FEED HUBBY STEAKS

Butcher Shop Census Shows That's Favorite Buy With Gotham Housewives.

The New York meat council is seeking first-hand facts about the feeding
of husbands. The council's agents visited 150 butcher shops and discovered that 38 per cent of the husband-feeding wives buy steaks for their providers.

Twenty-six per cent demand lamb
chops for the husbandly appetite.
Eighteen per cent buy pork chops.
Eighteen per cent take home an arm-
ful of chopped meat (hamburger).

There is an economic side to the question that arouses comment. Steaks, demanded most, constitute less than
a quarter of the entire beef carcass.
Steaks sell for 52 and 58 cents a pound.
Lamb chops are but a small fraction
of the whole lamb and they are costly
—42 cents a pound. Pork chops are less expensive and hamburger is cheapest.

LATIN "AS SHE IS SPOKE"

Guide Is Weak on Vocabulary, but
Strong on Facts.

A guide at the state capitol, at Jefferson City, Mo., whose duty it is
to escort sightseers through the new building, to show the points of beauty
and explain the oil paintings, brought his party to rest a few days ago in the governor's reception room. One of the women wanted to know the price of the Persian rug on the floor. The guide
had some figures handy; the women
did not question his veracity.

But presently she spied the figure of
the state seal, which looks down from almost every nook and corner of the building.

"What is that, 'Salus populi suprema
lex esto?'" asked the woman, reading
the motto on the seal.

"To tell the truth, lady," spoke the
guide without a moment's hesitation,
"those words are Greek, but in English they mean, 'The best men get the
jobs.'"

LOW DRIVES KILL TWO BIRDS

British Golfers' Hard Hits Wing Larks
in Flight.

Although birds have often been killed by driven golf balls, the experience of two players on the Thorpe
Hall course, Essex, England, is probably unique, for each accounted for
one bird in the same round.

Driving a long, low shot from the tenth tee, W. L. Wass saw his ball hit
a titlark and cut it cleanly in two.

Ten minutes later Wass' partner, A.
F. Hart, playing a mashie shot down
the twelfth fairway, struck a singing
lark in flight, killing it outright.

The birds are to be stuffed and set up in the club lounge—already the
home of a partridge and a greenfinch killed some years ago by members in play.

TUMOR TAKEN FROM BRAIN

Second Operation of Kind in Surgical
History Proves a Success.

For the second time in the history
of medical science, a German surgeon
has successfully operated for removal
of tumor on the brain and cure of the rare attendant ailment, "Jackson
epilepsy."

The operator was the famous Berlin
surgeon, Professor Unger of the Virs-
chow hospital, who was assisted by Professor Mendel, noted neurologist.

Unger cut into the left side of the skull and thence into the brain, removing the tumor as big as a man's fist,
which rested almost at the base of the brain.
